

LAW OF GEORGIA
CRIMINAL CODE OF GEORGIA

GENERAL PART

SECTION ONE

CRIMINAL LAW

CHAPTER I – Criminal Legislation of Georgia

Article 1 – Criminal legislation of Georgia and its purpose

1. The Criminal Code of Georgia shall establish grounds for criminal liability, define which acts are criminal and determine an appropriate punishment or any other type of a penal sanction.
2. This Code shall comply with the Constitution of Georgia and with universally recognised principles and standards of international law.
3. The purpose of this Code shall be the prevention of criminal infringements and the protection of public order.

CHAPTER II – The Scope of Criminal Law

Article 2 – Application of a criminal law in time

1. The criminality and punishability of an act shall be determined by the criminal law applicable at the time of its commission.
2. The time of committing a crime shall be the time when the principal or accomplice was acting or was about to act. The time when the result has occurred shall not matter.

Article 3 – Retroactive force of a criminal law

1. A criminal law that decriminalises an act or reduces penalty for it shall have retroactive force. A criminal law that criminalises an act or increases punishment for it shall not have retroactive force.
2. If a new criminal law mitigates punishment for an act for which the offender is serving it, this punishment shall be mitigated within the limits of the sanctions of this Criminal Law.
3. If the Criminal Law was amended several times between the commission of a crime and the delivery of the judgement, the most lenient law shall apply.

SECTION TWO

CRIME

CHAPTER III – Grounds for Criminal Liability and Categories of Crime

Article 7 – Grounds for criminal liability

1. The grounds for criminal liability shall be a crime, i.e. an unlawful and guilty act provided for by this Code. The grounds for criminal liability of legal persons shall be determined by the relevant provisions of this Code.
2. An act that, although formally containing the signs of an act provided for by this Code, has not caused, due to its insignificance, such harm or has not created the risk of such harm that would require criminal prosecution of its perpetrator shall not be deemed a crime.

Law of Georgia No 3530 of 25 July 2006 – LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 271

Article 8 – Causation

1. If, under the relevant article of this Code, a crime is considered completed only when an act has caused an unlawful result or created a specific threat of the occurrence of such result, it shall be necessary to establish causation between this act and the result or threat.
2. Causation shall exist when an act constituted a necessary condition for the unlawful result or specific threat provided for under the relevant article of this Code, without which this time the result or such threat would not have occurred.
3. Omission shall be considered to be a necessary condition for the occurrence of an unlawful result or a specific threat provided for under the relevant article of this Code, when a person had a special legal obligation to act, was able to act and the result would have been avoided by taking mandatory and possible action.

Article 9 – Intentional crime

1. An act committed with direct or indirect intent shall constitute an intentional crime.
2. An act shall be considered to have been committed with direct intent, if the person [who commits it] is aware of the unlawfulness of the act, foresees its unlawful consequences and desires those consequences, or foresees the inevitability of the occurrence of such consequences.
3. An act shall be considered to have been committed with indirect intent if the person was aware of the unlawfulness of his/her action, was able to foresee the occurrence of the unlawful consequences and did not desire those consequences, but consciously permitted them or was negligent about the occurrence of those consequences.

Article 10 – Crime of negligence

1. An act that has been committed through reckless misconduct or negligence shall be considered a crime of negligence.
2. An act shall be considered to have been committed with reckless misconduct if the person was aware that the act was prohibited under the standard of care, foresaw the possibility of the occurrence of the unlawful consequences, but groundlessly counted on their being prevented.
3. An act shall be considered to have been committed with negligence if a person was not aware that of the act was prohibited under the standard of care, did not foresee the possibility of the occurrence of the unlawful consequences, although he/she was obliged and was able to foresee them.
4. An act committed through negligence shall be considered a crime only if so provided by the relevant article of this Code.

Article 11 – Liability for intentional crime with attendant consequences

1. If a criminal law provides for an increase of punishment for the occurrence of the attendant consequences that were not intended by the offender, then such increase shall be permitted only when the person caused these consequences through negligence. Such crime shall be considered an intentional crime.
2. Other elements qualifying intentional crime shall be imputed to a person only when his/her intent contained this element.

Article 11¹ – Liability for a domestic crime

A domestic crime shall mean a crime under Articles 109, 115, 117, 118, 120, 126, 133¹, 133², 137-141, 143, 144-144³, 149-151¹, 160, 171, 187, 253-255¹, 381¹ and 381² of this Code, which is committed by one family member against another family member. Law of Georgia No 5170 of 28 October 2011 – website, 11.11.2011

Article 19 – Attempted crime

1. An attempted crime shall be an intentional act that was aimed at committing a crime, but the crime was inchoate.
2. Criminal liability for an attempted crime shall be determined under a respective article of this Code providing for liability for a completed crime, by making reference to this article.

Article 20 – Releasing from liability for inchoate crimes

A person shall not be criminally liable for the preparation of a crime or for an attempt if, due to his/her ignorance or other personal defect, the intended unlawful consequences could not have been accomplished through the means by which it was to be committed.

Article 21 – Voluntary abandonment of a crime

1. A person shall not be criminally liable, if he/she voluntarily and for good abandons the completion of a crime.
2. A person who voluntarily abandons the completion of a crime shall be criminally liable if the act actually committed by him/her comprises some other crime.

3. Organisers, abettors and aiders of a crime shall not be criminally liable if they dissuades the principal, timely informed relevant authorities or otherwise prevented the principal or other accomplices from completing the crime. An aider shall also not be criminally liable if he/she, before the principal started the commission of the crime refused to perform the promised act, or before the principal completed the crime he/she took back the tools or means provided [to the principal] for the commission of the crime.

4. If, through their actions, the organiser, abettor and a person providing psychological assistance have failed to preclude the principal from completing the crime, then the court, in imposing punishment, may consider the measures taken by them as a circumstance mitigating their liability.

5. A person who has done everything he/she could to accomplish the relevant consequences of corpus delicti, but later, prevented those consequence through his/her voluntary act, shall also not be criminally liable.

Law of Georgia No 292 of 5 May 2000 – LHG I, No 18, 15.5.2000, Art. 45

CHAPTER VII – Perpetration and Complicity in Crime

Article 22 – Perpetration

A principal is a person who immediately commits or has immediately participated in the commission of a crime together with another person (joint principal), also a person who has committed a crime through another person who, under this Code, shall not be criminally liable due to his/her age, insanity or other circumstances.

Article 23 – Complicity in a crime

Complicity in a crime shall mean joint participation of two or more persons in the commission of an intentional crime.

Article 24 – Types of accomplices

1. A person who organised the commission of a crime or directed its execution, as well as a person who created and guided an organised group, shall be deemed an organiser.

2. A person who persuaded another person to commit an intentional crime shall be deemed an abettor.

3. A person who provided assistance in the commission of the crime shall be an aider.

Article 25 – Liability of the principal and accomplice

1. A principal and accomplice shall be criminally liable only according to their own guilt based on the single unlawful act, taking into consideration the nature and extent of participation of each of them in the commission of the crime.

2. Criminal liability of a joint principal shall be determined under the relevant article of this Code, without making reference to this article.

3. Criminal liability of the organiser, abettor and aider shall be determined under the relevant article of this Code, by making reference to this article, except when they, at the same time, are joint principals of the crime.

4. When there is an element present in the personality of the principal or accomplice that is characteristic of an unlawful act, then this element shall be attributed to another principal or accomplice in whose person it was not present, if he/she was aware of this element.

5. Personal feature that is characteristic of guilt or personality of one of the principals or accomplices shall be attributed to the principal or accomplice who is characterised by that feature.

6. For complicity in a crime in which the principal may be a special subject of the relevant crime under this Code, the person shall be criminally liable as the organiser, abettor or aider.

7. If the principal has inchoate the crime, the accomplice shall bear criminal liability for complicity in the preparation of the crime or in the attempt. Criminal liability for the preparation of a crime shall also be imposed on the person who, due to the circumstances beyond his/her control, failed to persuade another person to commit the crime.

Article 26 – Excessive acts of the principal

1. Excessive acts of the principal shall mean the commission by the principal of such unlawful act that the other joint principals or accomplices did not intend to commit.
2. The other joint principals or accomplices shall not be criminally liable for the excessive acts of the principal.

Article 27 – Crimes committed jointly by more than one person

1. A crime shall be considered to have been committed jointly by more than one person if two or more principals jointly participated in its commission without prior agreement.
2. A crime shall be considered to have been committed jointly by more than one person with prior agreement if persons participating in its commission united in advance to jointly commit the crime.
3. A crime shall be considered to have been committed by an organised group if it was committed by a structured group formed and acting jointly within a specific period of time and the member of which united in advance to commit one or several crimes, or the purpose of which is to unlawfully obtain direct or indirect financial or other material benefit.
4. In cases provided for by the relevant articles of this Code, criminal liability for setting up or directing an organised group shall be imposed on the person who created or directed such a group. Liability for all the crimes committed by this group shall be imposed on the same person if the latter intended to commit those crimes. Other participants of an organised group shall bear liability for the participation of the group in cases provided for by the relevant article of this Code, as well as for the crime in the preparation or commission of which they participated.

Note: For the purposes of paragraph 3 of this article, a structured group shall be the group that has not been casually set up for immediate commission of a crime and that does not require formal distribution of roles among its members, or continuous membership or a developed structure.

Law of Georgia No 3530 of 25 July 2006 – LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 271

CHAPTER VIII – Circumstances Excluding the Criminality of an Action

Article 28 – Self-defence

1. A person shall not be considered to have acted unlawfully if he/she commits an act provided for by this Code in self-defence, i.e. injures the wrongdoer during the unlawful infringement to protect his/her or other person's legally protected interests.
2. A person shall have the right to self-defence regardless of whether or not he/she is able to prevent infringement or seek assistance from another person.
3. Injuring a perpetrator for the purpose of recovering the property or other legally protected interests that have been taken away through unlawful infringement shall be considered lawful even when it has occurred immediately after the wrongdoer took possession of the legally protected interests, and if the legally protected interests could still have been immediately recovered.
4. An excessive act of self-defence shall mean an act of the person acting in self-defence that is clearly disproportionate to the character and threat of the assault.

Article 29 – Seizure of offender

1. A person shall not be considered to have acted unlawfully if he/she seizes the offender to bring him/her before public authorities without exceeding the measures required for this purpose.
2. Exceeding the measures required for seizing an offender shall mean clear incompatibility of this measure with the gravity of the crime committed by the person to be seized and the circumstances relating to seizure.

Article 30 – Extreme necessity

A person shall not be considered to have acted unlawfully if he/she commits an act provided for by this Code in absolute necessity i.e. if he/she injures another person to avert the danger facing the legally protected interests of an injurer or of any other person, provided that the danger could not have been avoided through other means and if the harm caused to these interests was of less significant than the harm averted.

Law of Georgia No 292 of 5 May 2000 – LHG I, No 18, 15.5.2000, Art. 45

Article 31 – Justified risk

1. A person shall not be considered to have acted unlawfully if he/she harms the legally protected interests provided the risk is justified to achieve socially useful goals.
2. Risk shall be considered justified unless this goal could have been achieved without risk and if the person has taken all measures to prevent harm to legally protected interests.

Article 32 – releasing from criminal liability for other legally justifiable acts

A person shall not act unlawfully if he/she commits an act provided for in this Code under such other circumstance which, although not specifically mentioned in this Code, fully satisfies the requirements for lawfulness of this act.

CHAPTER IX – Circumstances Excluding and Mitigating Guilt

Article 33 – Release from criminal liability due to age

A person who has not attained 14 years of age at the time of the commission of an unlawful act provided for by this Code shall be considered to act without guilt.

Article 35 – Diminished capacity

1. An adult person who at the time of committing a crime was in a state of diminished capacity, i.e. due to his/her mental illness was unable to fully appreciate the actual nature or unlawfulness of his/her acts or control those acts shall not be released from criminal liability.
2. The court shall take into consideration the diminished capacity in imposing punishment.
3. (Deleted – 12.6.2016, No 3714).

Article 36 – Mistake of law

1. A person who lacks awareness that the act he/she is committing is prohibited shall not be punished only if the mistake is pardonable.
2. A mistake shall be considered pardonable if, under the given circumstances, the person was not and could not have been aware of the fact that he/she was committing a prohibited act.
3. When a mistake is not pardonable, the person may be held liable only for negligence, provided that the commission of this act is punished under this Code.

Article 37 – Execution of orders or instructions

1. A person who harms the legally protected interests when executing a mandatory order or instruction shall not bear criminal liability. Criminal liability for such harm shall be imposed on the person who issued the unlawful order or instruction.
2. A person who knowingly executes an unlawful order or instruction shall be criminally liable according to the general rules, unless there are other circumstances that exclude the guilt.

Article 38 – Releasing from criminal liability for other non-culpable actions

A person shall act culpably if he/she commits an act provided for in this Code under such other circumstances that, although not specifically mentioned in this Code, fully satisfies the requirements for non-culpability of this act.

SECTION THREE

SENTENCE

CHAPTER X – Goals and Types of Sentences

Article 39 – Goal of a sentence

1. The goal of a sentence is to restore justice, prevent repeated commission of a crime and re-socialise the offender.
2. The goal of a sentence shall be accomplished by exerting influence on the convicted person and other persons in order to ensure that they develop a sense of responsibility before the law and the observance of public order. Such forms and measures of influence on convicted persons are provided for by the corrections legislation of Georgia.
3. The purpose of a sentence shall not be the physical torture or humiliation of a person.

Article 42 – The fine

1. A fine shall be a monetary penalty.

2. The minimum amount of a fine shall be GEL 2 000. If an appropriate article of the Special Part of this Code provides for imprisonment for up to three years, the minimum amount of the fine shall be at least GEL 500.

3. The court shall determine the amount of a fine according to the gravity of the crime committed and the material status of the convicted person. The material status shall be determined based on the person's property, income and other circumstances.
4. The court shall, in its judgement, refer to the amount of a payable fine in lari.
5. A fine shall also be imposed as a supplementary punishment when it is not considered as a supplementary punishment under an appropriate article of this Code, except for a crime under Article 126¹ of this Code.

5¹. (Deleted – 12.6.2016, No 3714).

6. If a convicted person evades paying the fine or if the payment cannot be enforced, this punishment shall be substituted by community service, corrective labour, house arrest or imprisonment. At the same time, the period of time during which the convicted person was serving this sentence shall be counted towards the term of the community service, corrective labour or house arrest based on the following calculation: GEL 50 of the imposed fine – 4 hours of community service, one day of corrective labour, one day of house arrest. In addition, if a person maliciously evades the community service, corrective labour or house arrest imposed instead of the fine, it shall be substituted by imprisonment, to the extent and under the procedure determined by this Code for this type of punishment.

Article 43 – Deprivation of right to hold an office or carry out activities

1. Deprivation of the right to hold an office or carry out activities shall mean that a convicted person is prohibited from holding an appointed office in public service or in local self-government bodies or from pursuing professional or other activities.
2. Deprivation of the right to hold an office or carry out activities shall be imposed as a basic punishment for a term of from one to five years and as a supplementary punishment for a term of from six months to three years.
3. Deprivation of the right to hold an office or to carry out a particular activity may be imposed as a supplementary punishment even when it has not been considered as a punishment for the committed crime under the relevant article of this Code provided that, based on the character and quality of the threat of the crime and the offender's personality, the court considers it impossible to reserve him/her the right to hold an office or carry out activities.
4. At the time of imposing community service or corrective labour as a basic punishment, also, in the case of a conditional sentence, the term of a supplementary punishment imposed in the form of the deprivation of the right to hold an office or carry out activities shall be calculated from the moment when the court judgement enters into force. The term of a supplementary punishment imposed in the form of the deprivation of the right to hold an office or carry out activities in addition to the house arrest or imprisonment imposed as a basic punishment, shall be calculated from the moment when the court judgement enters into force and shall extend over the entire term of service of the basic punishment.

Article 44 – Community service

1. Community service shall mean free labour of a convicted person where the type of labour is determined by the probation bureau.

2. Community service shall be imposed for the term of 40 to 800 hours. If a fine is substituted by community service, or in the case provided for by Article 73(3) and (7) of this Code, or if a plea bargain is concluded between the parties, it may also be imposed for a longer period. The daily length of the community service must not exceed eight hours.

3. If a convicted person refuses to render or deliberately evades community service, this punishment shall be substituted by a fine, house arrest or imprisonment. In addition, the time during which the convicted person was serving this sentence shall be counted towards the term of the house arrest or imprisonment based on the following calculation: five hours of community service – one day of house arrest, one day of imprisonment.

4. Community service shall not be imposed on disabled persons of first and second categories, pregnant women, and women with children aged fewer than seven, persons of retirement age, as well as for recruited military service persons.

5. Community service may be imposed as a supplementary punishment even when it has not been considered as a sentence under the relevant article of this Code.

Article 45 – Corrective labour

1. Corrective labour shall be imposed for a term of from one month to two years and it shall be served at the place of work of the convicted person.

2. When imposing corrective labour, at least five and not more than twenty percent of the amount established by the judgement shall be deducted from the convicted person's salary in favour of the State.

3. If a convicted person deliberately evades corrective labour, this punishment shall be substituted by house arrest or imprisonment. In addition, the time during which the convicted person was serving this sentence shall be counted towards the term of the house arrest or imprisonment based on the following calculation: one day of corrective labour – one day of house arrest; three days of corrective labour – one day of imprisonment.

Article 46 – Service restriction of military person

1. Service restrictions for military personnel shall be imposed on a military person for committing the crime against military service provided for by the special section of this Code, also on a military servant convicted of another crime instead of the corrective labour provided for under the relevant article of this Code.

2. Service restrictions for military personnel shall be imposed for a term of from three months to two years.

3. When imposing service restrictions for military personnel, not more than twenty percent of the amount established under the judgement shall be deducted from the convicted person's salary in favour of the State. When serving this sentence, the convicted person may not be promoted or granted a higher military rank. The term of sentence shall not be counted towards the term of service for granting him/her the next military rank.

Article 47¹ – House arrest

1. House arrest shall mean imposition on a convicted person of the obligation to stay in his/her place of residence during a specific period of a day.
2. House arrest shall be imposed on a person with no criminal record for a term of six months to two years.
3. If imprisonment, community service, corrective labour or fine is substituted by the house arrest, it may be imposed even for a term less than six months and more than two years.
4. If a convicted person deliberately evades house arrest, this punishment shall be substituted by imprisonment – for a term of the house arrest imposed under the court judgment. In addition, the time during which the convicted person was serving this sentence shall be counted towards the term of the imprisonment based on the following calculation: one day of house arrest – one day of imprisonment.
5. Generally, house arrest shall be enforced with the use of a means of electronic supervision. The decision about the non-use of a means of electronic supervision shall be made by the legal entity under public law operating under the Ministry of Justice of Georgia – the National Agency for Enforcement of Non-custodial Sentences and Probation.
6. House arrest shall not be imposed on a conscripted military servant and on a person having committed a domestic crime.
7. It shall be forbidden for a convicted person to cross the border of Georgia during the period of his/her serving the house arrest.

1. Fixed term imprisonment shall mean the isolation of a convicted person from the society and his/her placement in a penitentiary institution provided for by law.
2. Fixed term imprisonment shall be imposed for a term of from six months to twenty years, except as provided for by Article 59 of this Code.
- 2¹. The Court may impose a sentence less than the lowest limit of the sentence under paragraph 2 of this article, provided that a plea bargain is concluded between the parties.

3. If community service, corrective labour, house arrest or a fine is substituted by fixed-term imprisonment, it may be imposed for a term of less than six months.

4. (Deleted – 17.4.2013, No 546).

5. When imposing a fixed term imprisonment, the court may, by its judgement order the service of a certain part of the sentence and count the other part as a conditional sentence provided the accused (convicted) person admits the crime (unless the person has been caught at the scene of the crime or immediately after the crime has been committed), names accomplices and collaborates with the investigation authorities. If, except for the conclusion of a plea bargain agreement, a particularly serious crime has been committed, a conditional sentence may be deemed a quarter of the sentence imposed, one third of the sentence, in the case of a serious crime, and half of the sentence, in the case of a less serious crime.

Article 52 – Confiscation of property

1. Confiscation of property shall mean gratuitous deprivation in favour of the State of the object and/or instrument of the crime or of the article intended for the commission of a crime, and/or of the criminally obtained property.

2. Confiscation of the object and/or instrument of the crime, or of the article intended for the commission of a crime shall mean the deprivation in favour of the State of property owned or rightfully held by the accused or convicted person, which was used for the commission of an intentional crime or of property that was in any form intended for this purpose. The object and/or instrument of the crime, or the article intended for committing a crime shall be confiscated by the court for the commission of all intentional crimes provided for by this Code, when the object and/or the instrument of the crime or the article intended for committing a crime is available and their confiscation is necessary due to public and social interests or for protecting the rights and freedoms of individuals or for preventing new crimes.

3. Confiscation of criminally obtained property shall mean gratuitous deprivation in favour of the State from the convicted person of the criminally acquired property (all property and intangible assets as well as title deeds for property), also of any income from this property or of property that is equivalent in value. The court shall order the confiscation of criminally obtained property for all intentional crimes provided for by this Code, if it can be proved that this property has been obtained criminally.

Article 52¹ – Restriction of the rights regarding weapons

1. Restriction of the rights regarding weapons shall mean the restriction and/or prohibition of manufacturing or purchasing of weapons, and/or of keeping or carrying and/or using of weapons (including service weapons).
2. Restriction of the rights regarding weapons may be imposed as a supplementary punishment only when it is provided for under a respective article for commission of an offence.
3. When the restriction of the rights regarding weapons is imposed as a supplementary punishment, it is not necessary that a weapon be the instrument of crime or be intended for commission of crime.
4. The restriction of the rights regarding weapons shall be imposed as a punishment for a term of one to five years.
5. When community service, corrective labour or house arrest is imposed as a basic punishment, also in the case of a conditional sentence, the term of the restriction of the rights regarding weapons imposed as a supplementary punishment shall be calculated from the moment of entry of the court judgment into force. When imprisonment is imposed as a basic punishment, the term of the restriction of the rights regarding weapons imposed as a supplementary punishment shall be calculated from the moment of serving of the basic punishment.
6. In the case of the restriction of the rights regarding weapons, a weapon shall be seized and the seized weapon shall be stored under the procedure established by the legislation of Georgia.

Note: For the purposes of this punishment, the word 'weapons' shall have the meaning provided for in Article 2(a) of the Law of Georgia on Weapons.

CHAPTER XI – Sentencing

Article 53 – Principles of sentencing

1. The court shall impose a fair sentence on an offender within the scope provided for by the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code and taking into consideration the provisions of the general part of this Code. A stricter sentence may be imposed only when less severe sentence fails to achieve the goal of the sentence.
2. A sentence more severe than the one provided for by the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code may be imposed in the case of cumulative crimes and cumulative sentences, according to Articles 59 and 60 of this Code. The grounds for imposing a sentence that is less severe than the one provided for by the relevant article of the Special Part are defined under Article 55 of this Code.
3. When imposing a sentence, the court shall take into consideration circumstances that mitigate or aggravate liability of the offender, in particular, the motive and goal of the crime, the unlawful intent demonstrated in the act, the character and degree of the breach of obligations, the modus operandi and unlawful consequence of the act, prior history of the offender, personal and financial circumstances, and conduct of the offender after the offence, in particular, the offender's desire to indemnify the damage and reconcile with the victim.

3¹. (Deleted – 4.5.2017, No 763)

Commission of a crime on the grounds of race, colour, language, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, religion, political or other beliefs, disability, citizenship, national, ethnic or social origin, material status or rank, place of residence or other discriminatory grounds shall constitute an aggravating circumstance for all the relevant crimes provided for by this Code.

4. If mitigating or aggravating circumstances are considered as a component of corpus delicti under an article or part of an article of the Special Part of this Code, the same circumstances shall not be taken into account when imposing a sentence.

Article 53¹ – Aggravating factors for punishment

1. Commission of crime on the basis of race, skin colour, language, sex, sexual orientation, gender, gender identity, age, religion, political or other views, disability, citizenship, national, ethnic or social affiliation, origin, property or birth status, place of residence or other signs of discrimination with the reason of intolerance shall be an aggravating factor for liability for all respective crimes.
2. Commission of crime by one family member against another family member, against a helpless person, a minor or in his/her presence, with the extreme cruelty, with the use of a weapon or under the threat of using a weapon, by abusing the official position shall be an aggravating factor for liability for all respective crimes.
3. When imposing a fixed term imprisonment for a crime committed with an aggravating factor under paragraph 1 or 2 of this article, the term of a sentence to be served shall exceed at least by one year the minimum term of sentence provided for the committed crime under the respective article or part of an article of this Code.
4. If an article or part of an article of the Special Part of this Code refers to a factor under paragraph 1 or 2 of this article as to an element qualifying the crime, and if there are grounds under Article 55 or 63(1) of this Code, the procedure under paragraph 1 of this article shall not be taken into consideration when imposing a sentence.

Law of Georgia No 3772 of 30 November 2018 – website, 14.12.2018

Article 54 – Imposing a sentence under mitigating circumstances

If, after committing a crime, the offender appears and pleads guilty, actively assists in the discovery of a crime and there are no aggravating circumstances, the term or measure of the sentence shall not exceed three fourths of the maximum term or measure of the most severe sentence under the respective article or part of an article of the Special Part of this Code.

Article 55 – Imposing more lenient sentences than provided for by law

The court may impose a sentence that is less than the lowest limit of the measure of a sentence provided for by an appropriate article of this Code, or other, more lenient sentence if a plea bargain is concluded between the parties.

Article 57 – Imposing a sentence for complicity in or perpetration of a crime

1. When imposing a sentence for complicity in or perpetration of a crime, account shall be taken of the character and degree of the actual participation of the person, importance of his/her participation for the accomplishment of the goal of the crime, his/her influence on the character and degree of the caused or potential damage.

2. Mitigating or aggravating circumstances that relate to the personality of one of the accomplices or the principal shall be taken into consideration only when imposing a sentence on this accomplice or principal.

Article 58 – Imposing a sentence in cases of recidivism

1. When imposing a fixed term imprisonment for recidivism the term of the sentence to be served shall exceed at least by one year the minimum term of the sentence provided for this crime under the respective article or part of an article of this Code.

2. If an article or part of an article of the Special Part of this Code refers to conviction as an element qualifying the crime, as well as in case of circumstances provided for by Article 55 or 63(1) of this Code, the procedure under paragraph 1 of this article shall not be taken into consideration when imposing a sentence for recidivism.

Article 59 – Imposing a sentence in the case of cumulative crimes and cumulative sentences

1. In the case of cumulative crimes the sentence shall be imposed for each individual crime.

2. When imposing a final sentence for cumulative crimes, the more severe sentence shall absorb the less severe sentence, while when imposing equal sentences, one sentence shall absorb the other sentence.

3. In the case of recidivism, when imposing a final sentence for cumulative crimes, a more severe sentence shall absorb a less lenient sentence or the sentences provided for these crimes shall be added up in part or in full. In the case of recidivism, the term of imprisonment imposed as a final sentence may not exceed 30 years.

4. A sentence shall be imposed in the manner provided for by paragraphs 2 or 3 of this article if after delivering a judgment it is established that the convicted person is also guilty of another crime, which he/she committed before a judgement was delivered on the first case. In this case, the sentence that has been served in full or in part under the first judgement shall be considered to be the final sentence.

5. When imposing a sentence in the case of cumulative crimes, the court shall, fully or partially, add to the sentence imposed under the latest judgement the outstanding part of the sentence imposed under the previous judgement, or the sentence imposed under the latest judgement shall absorb the outstanding part of the sentence imposed under the previous sentence.

6. The final sentence imposed in the case of cumulative sentences shall be calculated from the day when the final judgement is delivered, except when the probation period for the conditional sentence imposed on the convicted person under the previous judgement has not expired by the time the last crime is committed. In this case, the sentence shall be calculated from the day when the person was arrested for committing the crime provided for by the latest judgement. In the case of cumulative sentences, the term of imprisonment imposed as the final sentence may not exceed 35 years.

7. In the case of cumulative crimes or sentences, the extent of the final sentence, if it is more lenient than imprisonment, may not exceed the maximum extent provided for under the general part of this Code for the given type of sentence.

8. In the case of cumulative crimes or sentences, a supplementary punishment may be imposed along with the basic punishment. The final supplementary punishment imposed at the time of accumulation may not exceed the maximum extent provided for under the general part of this Code for a given type of sentence.

Article 62 – Calculation of the term of a sentence and credit towards the sentence

1. The term for the deprivation of the right to hold an office or carry out activities, for corrective labour, service restrictions for military personnel, house arrest and imprisonment shall be calculated in years and months, while the term for community service in hours, except when a plea bargain is concluded between the parties.

2. When altering and accumulating sentences provided for by paragraph 1 of this article, as well as when crediting sentences, the term of the sentence may be calculated in days.

3. The period of pre-trial detention shall be counted towards the term of the sentence, based on the following calculation: one day of detention – one day of imprisonment, two days of house arrest, and three days of corrective labour or service restrictions for military personnel, five hours of community service.

4. The period of detention before the entry into force of the judgement on the crime committed abroad, as well as the term of imprisonment served under the judgement, in the case of extraditing a person for enforcement of the judgement under Article 6 of this Code shall be counted in the following manner: one day for one day.

5. If a fine or deprivation of the right to hold an office or carry out activities was imposed on a person, who was in pre-trial detention, as a basic punishment, the court shall, taking the period of detention into account, either mitigate the sentence imposed or completely release him/her from serving it.

CHAPTER XII – Conditional sentence

Article 63 – Grounds for imposing conditional sentences

1. If a plea bargain is concluded between the parties, the court may rule that the sentence imposed be considered conditional.
2. If the convicted person has committed a particularly serious or intentional serious crime, the sentence imposed may not be considered a conditional sentence.
3. If the convicted person has committed a less serious crime or a crime of negligence and he/she admits it and/or collaborates with investigative authorities, the court may rule that the sentence imposed be considered as a conditional sentence, unless the convicted person had previous conviction for particularly serious or intentional serious crime in the past.
4. If the convicted person has previous conviction for committing two or more intentional serious crimes in the past, the imposed sentence may not be considered as conditional.
5. (Deleted – 12.6.2016, No 3714).
6. In the case of a conditional sentence, a supplementary punishment may be imposed.

Article 64 – Probation period

In the case of the circumstances provided for in Articles 50(5) and 63 of this Code, the court shall determine a probation period during which the convicted person may not commit a new crime and shall fulfil the obligation assigned. When a more lenient punishment than imprisonment is imposed, the probation period must be at least one and not more than three years, and when imprisonment is imposed, the probation period must be at least one and not more than six years, and when the final punishment is imposed based on the accumulation of sentences in the case of cumulative crimes and cumulative sentences, the probation period must be at least two years and not more than six years.

2. When there is a ground under Article 72¹(1) of this Code, the court shall fix the probation period of at least two and not more than seven years.

Article 65 – Imposing obligations

In the case of conditional sentence, if there are relevant grounds, the court may impose on the convicted person certain obligations: not to change permanent place of residence without the permission of the Probation Bureau, not to establish relationships with persons who may engage him/her in anti-social activities, not to visit a particular place, to provide material support to the family, to undergo a treatment course for alcoholism, drug addiction, toxic addiction or venereal disease, and if the convicted person has committed a domestic crime, to undergo a mandatory training course directed at changing violent behaviour and conduct. The court may also impose on the convicted person other obligations which will help to correct him/her.

Article 66 – Monitoring and assistance

1. The Probation Bureau shall monitor the conduct of a probationer and assist him/her. This agency shall supervise the fulfilment of obligations imposed on a person, and immediately notify the court of their non-fulfilment.

2. The functions provided for by paragraph 1 of this article shall be performed with regard to a military service person on probation by the administration of the military unit.

3. During the probation period, the court may, on the recommendation of the body responsible for monitoring and assisting the probationer, cancel, in full or in part, the obligation imposed on the probationer or impose a new obligation on him/her.

Article 67 – Lifting the conditional sentence or extending/reducing the probation period

1. If, after the lapse of at least half of the probation period, the probationer proves his/her correction by his/her conduct, the Standing Commission on Revocation of Conditional Sentences operating under the National Agency for Enforcement of Non-custodial Sentences and Probation – the legal entity under public law under the Ministry of Justice of Georgia shall, based on the petition of the agency responsible for monitoring and assisting convicted persons, make a decision on revoking a conditional sentence and removing the previous conviction of the probationer.

1¹. (Deleted – 1.6.2017, No 944).

2. Taking into consideration the conduct of the probationer, the court, on the recommendation of the agency specified in paragraph 1 of this article, may extend (for not longer than one year) or reduce the probation period.

3. If, during the probation period, the probationer systematically or persistently avoids the fulfilment of the assigned obligations, the court may, on the recommendation of the agency specified in paragraph 1 of this article, order the revocation of the conditional sentence and the enforcement of the sentence imposed under the judgement.

4. If during the probation period the probationer commits a crime of negligence, the court shall decide whether to revoke the conditional sentence or leave it in force.

5. If, during the probation period, the probationer commits an intentional crime, the court shall revoke the conditional sentence and impose a sentence on the convicted person under Article 59 of this Code. The same procedure shall apply when imposing a sentence in cases provided for by paragraph 4 of this article. As an exception, a conditional sentence may be imposed when concluding a plea bargain under Chapter XXI of the Criminal Procedure Code of Georgia, which shall be agreed with the General Prosecutor of Georgia or his/her Deputy.

Article 67¹ – Civil law agreement

1. The agency specified in Article 67(1) of this Code may revoke a conditional sentence and remove the previous conviction of the probationer before half of the probation period expires if the prosecutor has concluded a civil law agreement with the probationer and the probationer duly fulfilled the obligations imposed under the civil law agreement, and if there are no grounds provided for under Article 67(3-5) of this Code and the court has not decided to extend the probation period under Article 67(2) of this Code.

2. The prosecutor may, taking into consideration the conduct of the probationer, conclude a civil law agreement with the probationer, if he/she is willing and able to share his/her knowledge and experience in a certain field with others. The civil law agreement shall set for the obligations of the probationer and the time limits within which these obligations are to be fulfilled and after the expiration of which the conditional sentence may be revoked and the record of conviction of the probationer may be removed.

3. The Probation Bureau shall supervise the fulfilment of obligations undertaken by the probationer under the civil law agreement. The Probation Bureau shall periodically provide the prosecutor with information on the performance of the terms of this agreement.

SECTION FOUR

RELEASING FROM CRIMINAL LIABILITY AND PUNISHMENT

CHAPTER XIII – Releasing from Criminal Liability

Article 68 – Releasing from criminal liability due to active repentance

1. A person who has, for the first time, committed a crime for which the maximum sentence provided for by an article or part of an article of the Special Part of this Code does not exceed three years of imprisonment, may be released from criminal liability, if, after committing the crime, he/she voluntarily appears and admits his/her guilty, assists in the discovery of the crime and indemnifies the damage.

2. A person who has committed a crime of any other category, may be released from criminal liability, if so provided for by the relevant article of the Special Part of this Code.

Law of Georgia No 3619 of 24 September 2010 – LHG I, No 51, 29.9.2010, Art. 332

Article 70 – Releasing from criminal liability due to changed circumstances

The offender may be released from criminal liability if it is established that it is not expedient to impose criminal liability for the given act due to the changed circumstances.

Law of Georgia No 292 of 5 May 2000 – LHG I, No 18, 15.5.2000, Art. 45

Article 70¹ – Releasing from criminal liability due to the collaboration of the accused with investigative authorities

In exceptional cases, when the collaboration of the accused with investigative authorities has revealed the identity of an official and/or person(s) who has (have) committed a particularly serious crime, and the accused directly participated in the creation of essential conditions required for the discovery of the crime, the court may release the accused from criminal liability.

Law of Georgia No 3295 of 13 February 2004 – LHG I, No 6, 9.3.2004, Art. 22

Article 71 – Releasing from criminal liability due to the expiration of the limitation period

1. A person shall be released from criminal liability if:

a) two years have passed after committing a crime for which the maximum sentence provided for under the Special Part of this Code does not exceed a two-year term of imprisonment;

b) six years have passed after committing another, less serious crime;

c) ten years have passed after committing a serious crime;

c¹) fifteen years have passed after committing crimes provided for in Articles 332-342¹ of this Code, unless they constitute particularly serious crimes;

d) thirty years have passed after committing a particularly serious crime.

2. The limitation period shall be calculated starting from the day when the crime is committed up to the day when formal charges are brought against the person. If another crime is committed, the limitation period shall be calculated for each individual crime.

3. The running of the limitation period shall be suspended if the offender absconds during the investigation or trial. In this case, the running of the limitation period shall be resumed from the moment the offender gets arrested or appears with the confession of guilt.

4. The court shall decide whether to apply the limitation period to a person sentenced to life imprisonment. If the court considers it impossible to apply the limitation period, life imprisonment shall be substituted by a fixed term imprisonment.

5. The limitation period shall not apply in the case provided for by an international agreement of Georgia.

5¹. The limitation period shall not apply to acts provided for by Articles 144¹-144³ of this Code.

6. The limitation period shall be suspended for the period during which the person is protected by immunity.

7. Except as provided for by paragraphs 3 and 6 of this article, the running of the limitation period shall also be suspended during the time when it is impossible to carry out appropriate procedural actions under Article 16(2) of the Law of Georgia on International Cooperation in Criminal Matters against a person extradited to Georgia.

8. When criminal case materials and their duly certified copies are transmitted for their use in subsequent legal proceedings in Georgia according to Article 42 of the Law of Georgia on International Cooperation in Criminal Matters, the grounds provided for by the legislation of the foreign country for suspending the limitation period shall be taken into consideration by the agency in Georgia responsible for the proceedings only if these grounds are similar to the grounds provided for by this article for suspending the limitation period.

CHAPTER XIV – Release from Punishment

Article 72 – Release on parole

1. A person who has been imposed community service, corrective labour, service restrictions for military personnel or house arrest may be released on parole if the court considers that serving of the full sentence is no longer required for his/her correction, and a person who has been sentenced to fixed term imprisonment, except for a convicted person placed in a penitentiary institution of special risk, may be released on parole if the Local Council of the Ministry of Justice of Georgia considers that serving of the full sentence is no longer required for his/her correction. In addition, this person may in full or in part be released from serving the supplementary punishment.

2. When released on parole, the convicted person may be imposed the obligation provided for by Article 65 of this Code, which he/she shall fulfil during the period of the outstanding sentence.

3. A convicted person may be released on parole only when he/she has actually served:

a) at least half of the sentence for a less serious crime;

b) at least two thirds of the sentence for a serious crime;

c) at least three fourths of the sentence for a particularly serious crime;

d) three fourths of the sentence that has been imposed on a person who was released on parole in the past and the release on parole was revoked under paragraph 6 of this article;

e) three fourths of the sentence if it was imposed on a person whose unserved sentence was substituted by a more lenient punishment and the substituted punishment was cancelled under Article 73(10) of this Code.

4. The term of imprisonment actually served by the convicted person shall be at least six months.

5. The conduct of a convicted person who has been released on parole shall be monitored by the duly authorised enforcement bureau, and the conduct of the military servant, by the military unit's administration.

6. If, during the outstanding term of the sentence, the convicted person:

a) persistently avoids the fulfilment of the obligation imposed on him/her upon release on parole, the court may, on the recommendation of the authorities specified in paragraph 5 of this article, revoke the parole and order the service of the outstanding sentence;

b) commits a crime of negligence, the court shall decide whether to revoke the parole or leave it in force;

c) commits an intentional crime, the court shall impose a sentence on him/her under the procedure provided for by Article 59 of this Code. A sentence for a crime of negligent shall be imposed in the same manner if the court revokes the parole.

7. (Deleted – 1.6.2017, No 944).

8. For a convicted person who is released on parole from a sentence imposed in the form of community service provided for by Article 73(3) of this Code the term of the sentence actually served in the form of community service shall be counted towards the term provided for by paragraph 3 of this article, based on the following calculation: five hours of community service – one day of imprisonment.

9. For a convicted person who is released on parole from serving the house arrest imposed as a punishment under Article 73(3¹) of this Code, the actually served term of the house arrest as a punishment shall be counted towards the term defined in paragraph 3 of this article based on the following calculation: one day of house arrest – one day of imprisonment.

Article 72¹ – Revision of life imprisonment imposed as a punishment

1. In case a convicted person, on whom life imprisonment is imposed as a punishment, has actually served 20 years of life imprisonment, the court may release him/her on parole from further serving the sentence for the probation period provided for in Article 64(2) of this Code. When making the decision, the court shall consider the character of crime, the way in which the convicted person behaved during his/her service of sentence, the fact of committing a crime by him/her in the past, his/her criminal record, the risk of repeated commission of crime, the family circumstances and the personality of the convicted person.

2. If, within the probation period, a convicted person:

- a) has deliberately evaded performance of a duty imposed on him/her, the court may, upon presentation of the bodies provided for in Article 72(5) of this Code, hold that the probation period be revoked and the life imprisonment be enforced;
- b) has committed a crime of negligence, the question of whether the probation period be revoked or remain effective shall be decided by the court;
- c) has committed an intentional crime, the court shall impose a punishment on him/her under the procedure established by Article 59 of this Code. The same procedure shall apply when a punishment is imposed on a convicted person for committing a crime of negligence if the court revokes the probation period.

Law of Georgia No 944 of 1 June 2017 – website, 20.6.2017

Article 73 – Commutation of the outstanding sentence

1. The Local Council of the state sub-agency institution operating within the system of the Ministry of Justice of Georgia – the Special Penitentiary Service may substitute the outstanding sentence of the person sentenced to imprisonment for less serious crime by a more lenient sentence, based on his/her conduct during the service of the sentence. In addition, this person may in full or in part be released from serving the supplementary punishment (except for the confiscation of property).

2. The outstanding sentence may be substituted by a more lenient sentence only if the convicted person has actually served at least one third of the term of the sentence.

3. The Local Council of the state sub-agency institution operating within the system of the Ministry of Justice of Georgia – the Special Penitentiary Service can substitute the unserved portion of a sentence of a convicted person, on whom a fixed term imprisonment is imposed as a punishment, except for a convicted person placed in a special risk penitentiary institution, by community service with his/her own consent. In this case, the provisions of Article 44 (except for paragraphs 1 and 2) of this Code shall not apply. In addition, it is possible that a convicted person be released, in full or in part, from serving the supplementary punishment (except for confiscation of property).

3¹. The Local Council of the state sub-agency institution operating within the system of the Ministry of Justice of Georgia – the Special Penitentiary Service can substitute the unserved portion of a sentence of a convicted person, on whom a fixed term imprisonment is imposed as a punishment, except for a convicted person placed in a special risk penitentiary institution, by house arrest. In this case, provisions of Article 47¹ (2), (4) and (6) of this Code shall not apply. In addition, it is possible that a convicted person be released, in full or in part, from serving the supplementary punishment (except for the confiscation of property).

4. The unserved portion of a sentence of a convicted person under paragraphs 3 and 3¹ of this article may only be substituted by community service or house arrest if he/she has actually served:

- a) at least one third of a sentence to be served for a less serious crime;
- b) at least half of a sentence to be served for a serious crime;
- c) at least two thirds of a sentence to be served for a particularly serious crime;
- d) two thirds of a sentence which was imposed on a person who was released on parole in the past and the release on parole was revoked under Article 72(6) of this Code;
- e) two thirds of a sentence which was imposed on a person whose unserved portion of a sentence was substituted by a more lenient punishment in the past and the substituted sentence was revoked under paragraph 10 of this article.

5. (Deleted – 12.6.2016, No 3714).

6. The term of actually served term of imprisonment of the convicted person specified in paragraph 3 or 3¹ of this article shall be at least three months.

7. Life imprisonment of a convicted person may be substituted by a community service or house arrest if he/she has actually served 15 years of imprisonment and if the court considers that it is no longer required that the convict continue serving this sentence. When making the decision, the court shall consider the character of crime, the way in which the convicted person behaved during his/her service of sentence, the fact of committing a crime by him/her in the past, his/her criminal record, the risk of repeated commission of crime, the family circumstances and the personality of the convicted person. Life imprisonment of a convicted person may be substituted by house arrest for a term of at least five and not more than ten years, and by community service – for the same term, based on the calculation under Article 62(3) of this Code.

8. If a portion of imprisonment imposed as a punishment on a convicted person under paragraph 3 or 3¹ of this article has been counted as conditional, the probation period shall commence from the moment of serving the community service or house arrest imposed as a punishment.

9. The conduct of the convicted person specified in paragraph 3 or 3¹ of this article shall be monitored by the duly authorised probation bureau.

10. If, when serving community service, a convicted person under paragraph 3 or 7 of this article:

a) has deliberately evaded community service, or if further serving of a sentence is not appropriate due to any other reason, the court may, upon recommendation of the Probation Bureau, hold that the community service be revoked and the unserved portion of imprisonment imposed as a punishment be enforced;

b) committed a crime of negligence, the court shall decide whether to revoke the community service or leave it in force;

c) committed an intentional crime, the court shall revoke the community service and impose a punishment on a convicted person under the procedure established by Article 59 of this Code. A punishment for committing a crime of negligence shall be imposed on him/her under the same procedure if the court revokes the community service. In exceptional cases, community service may only be applied when a plea bargain is concluded between the parties under Chapter XXI of the Criminal Procedure Code of Georgia, which must be agreed upon with the Chief Prosecutor or a deputy Chief Prosecutor of Georgia.

11. In cases specified in paragraph 10 of this article, the period during which the convicted person served community service shall be included in the term of imprisonment, based on the following calculation: five hours of community service – one day of imprisonment.

12. If, when serving the house arrest, a convicted person under paragraph 3¹ or 7 of this article:

a) has deliberately evaded fulfilment of the duties imposed, or if further serving of a sentence is not appropriate due to any other reason, the court may, upon recommendation of the Probation Bureau, hold that the house arrest be revoked and the unserved portion of the imprisonment imposed as a punishment be enforced;

b) committed a crime of negligence, the court shall decide whether to revoke house arrest or leave it in force;

c) committed an intentional crime, the court shall revoke the house arrest and impose a punishment on a convicted person under the procedure established by Article 59 of this Code. A punishment for committing a crime of negligence shall be imposed under the same procedure if the court revokes the house arrest. In an exceptional case, house arrest may only be applied when a plea bargain is concluded between the parties under Chapter XXI of the Criminal Procedure Code of Georgia, which shall be agreed upon with the General Prosecutor of Georgia or his/her Deputy.

13. In cases specified in paragraph 12 of this article, the period during which a convicted person served the sentence in the form of house arrest shall be included in the term of imprisonment, based on the following calculation: one day of house arrest – one day of imprisonment.

14. In cases specified in paragraph 12 of this article, the court decision may be appealed in accordance with the legislation of Georgia.

1. In exceptional cases, when the identity of an official and/or of a person who has committed a particularly serious crime is revealed as a result of the collaboration with investigative authorities of a person sentenced to imprisonment, and if this person assists in the creation of essential conditions for the discovery of the crime, the General Prosecutor of Georgia may file a motion with the court requesting the review of the sentence imposed on the convicted person.
2. If the motion is granted, the court shall deliver the relevant decision to reduce the term of the sentence or to change the type of the sentence or to fully exempt the convicted person from the sentence.
3. A convicted person may not be fully exempted from the sentence in the criminal cases provided for by Articles 144¹, 144² and 144³ of this Code.

Article 74 – releasing from punishment due to illness or old age

1. The court may release a convicted person from further serving the sentence if his/her health status is not compatible with serving the sentence and if, based on the expert report, the recovery and/or substantial improvement of the health status of the convicted person is not expected.
2. The joint standing commission of the Ministry of Justice of Georgia and the Ministry of Internally Displaced Persons from the Occupied Territories, Labour, Health and Social Affairs of Georgia may release a convicted person placed in a penitentiary institution from further serving the sentence if he/she has an illness or a combination illnesses and it is difficult to maintain his/her basic life indicators irrespective of the treatment being administered, and if, furthermore, the expectation of lethality determined by the council of physicians on the basis of consensus is high.
3. Criminal liability may again be imposed on a convicted person released from further serving the sentence under this article, and a sentence may be fixed again in the case of his/her recovery if the periods of limitation provided for in Articles 71 and 76 of this Code have not passed.
4. The court may release a person that has attained an elderly age during his/her service of sentence (65 years for women, and 70 years for men) from further serving the sentence if life imprisonment is not imposed on him/her as a punishment and has served at least half of the sentence.
5. When reviewing the issues under paragraphs 1 and 4 of this article, the court shall consider the appropriateness of enforcement of the imprisonment imposed as a punishment, personality of the convicted person, the fact of his/her commission of a crime in the past, the character of crime, its motive and purpose, the consequence, the risk of repeated commission of crime, the way in which the convicted person behaved during his/her service of sentence, and other circumstances that may have influence on the court decision.
6. The grounds under this article for the release from further serving the sentence shall not apply to the punishment under Article 40(1)(i) of this Code.
7. If a convicted person is released from further serving the sentence under this article, he/she may also be released from serving a supplementary punishment.

Article 75 – Deferral of serving of a sentence by pregnant women

1. A court may defer the serving of a sentence for a pregnant woman for up to one year after the labour.
2. If, after being warned by the Probation Bureau, a convicted person reject the child or evades nurturing of the child, the court may, upon the recommendation of the Probation Bureau, vacate the deferral of serving the sentence and send the convicted person to serve the sentence at the place assigned under the judgement.
3. When the child attains the age of one year, the court shall exempt the convicted person from serving the outstanding sentence or substitute the outstanding sentence with a more lenient sentence or deliver a decision to return the convicted person to the respective institution to serve the outstanding sentence.
4. If during the period of deferral of serving the sentence, the convicted person commits a new crime, the court shall impose punishment on him/her under Article 61 of this Code.

Law of Georgia No 3619 of 24 September 2010 – LHG I, No 51, 29.9.2010, Art. 332

Article 76 – Relief from serving the punishment due to the expiry of periods of limitation of judgement of conviction

1. A convicted person shall be released from the serving of the sentence if the judgement of conviction that has entered into force is not enforced within the following time limits:
 - a) two years from the commission of a crime for which the maximum sentence imposed under the Special Part of this Code does not exceed two-years of imprisonment;
 - b) six years in the event of conviction for other, less serious crime;
 - c) ten years in the event of conviction for a serious crime;
 - d) fifteen years in the event of conviction for a particularly serious crime.
2. The running of the limitation period shall be suspended if the convicted person evades serving the sentence. In this case, the limitation period shall be resumed from the moment the convicted person gets arrested or appears with the confession of guilt. The time elapsed until the avoidance of serving the sentence shall be counted towards the limitation period.
3. The court shall decide whether to apply the limitation period to a person sentenced to life imprisonment. If the court considers it impossible to apply the limitation period, life imprisonment shall be substituted by a fixed term imprisonment.
4. The limitation shall not apply in the case provided for in an international agreement of Georgia.
5. The running of the limitation period shall be suspended for the period during which the person is protected by immunity.
6. Except as provided for by paragraphs 2, 4 and 5 of this article, the running of the limitation period shall also be suspended for a period during which it is impossible to carry out appropriate procedural actions under Article 16(2) of the Law of Georgia on International Cooperation in Criminal Matters to a convicted person extradited to Georgia.

7. When a judgement passed by an authorised foreign court is transmitted to Georgia for enforcement under Chapter VI of the Law of Georgia on International Cooperation in Criminal Matters, the relevant authorities of Georgia shall take into consideration the grounds for suspending the running of the limitation period only if they are similar to the grounds for suspending the running of the limitation period provided for by this article.

CHAPTER XV – Amnesty, Pardon, Record of Conviction

Article 77 – Amnesty

1. Amnesty shall be declared by the Parliament of Georgia with respect to an individually unspecified group of people.
2. Under an act of amnesty, an offender may be released from criminal liability and a convicted person may be exempted from punishment or the sentence imposed on him/her may be reduced or substituted by a more lenient punishment.
3. Under an act of amnesty, the record of conviction may be removed from persons who have served the sentence.

Article 78 – Pardon

1. Pardon shall be granted by the President of Georgia individually to a specific person.
2. Under an act of pardon, a convicted person may be released from further serving the sentence, or the sentence imposed on him/her may be reduced or substituted by a more lenient sentence.
3. Under an act of pardon, the record of conviction may be removed from a person who has served the sentence.

Article 79 – Record of conviction

1. A convicted person shall be considered to have a record of conviction from the day of entry into force of the judgment of conviction up to the moment when the record of conviction is cancelled or removed. The record of conviction shall be taken into consideration when making a decision on matters relating to criminal liability, qualification of crime and measures of correction and prevention.
2. The person relieved from punishment shall be considered not to have a record of conviction.
3. A record of conviction shall be cancelled with respect to:
 - a) probationers – after the probation period expires;
 - b) persons sentenced to a milder punishment than imprisonment – upon expiry of one year after serving the sentence;
 - c) persons sentenced to imprisonment for a less serious crime – upon expiry of three years after serving the sentence;
 - d) persons sentenced to imprisonment for a serious crime – upon expiry of six years after serving the sentence;
 - e) persons sentenced to imprisonment for a particularly serious crime – upon expiry of eight years after serving the sentence.
4. If a convicted person is released on parole in accordance with the law or if his/her outstanding sentence has been substituted by a more lenient sentence, the time limit for the cancellation of the record of conviction shall be calculated accordingly from the actually served sentence or from the moment of serving a more lenient punishment (basic and supplementary).
5. If, after serving the sentence, the convicted person's conduct is impeccable, the court may, at his/her request, remove his/her record of conviction before the expiry of the term for the cancellation of the record of conviction.
6. Cancelled or removed conviction shall not be taken into consideration when deciding matters relating to criminal liability, qualification of a crime and coercive measures.

CRIMINAL LIABILITY OF LEGAL PERSONS

Law of Georgia No 3530 of 25 July 2006 – LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 271

CHAPTER XVIII¹ – Criminal Liability of Legal Persons, Types of Punishment, Procedures and Terms for their Application

Law of Georgia No 3530 of 25 July 2006 – LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 271

Article 107¹ – Grounds for criminal liability of a legal person

1. The regulations established under this Code shall apply to legal persons. For the purposes of this Code, a legal person shall mean an entrepreneurial (commercial) or non-entrepreneurial (non-commercial) legal person (his/her legal successor).
2. A legal person shall be criminally liable for a crime provided for by this Code and committed on behalf of or through and/or in favour of the legal person, by the responsible person.
3. The responsible person specified in paragraph 2 of this article shall be a person responsible for the management and representation of the legal person and for making decisions on behalf of the legal person, and/or a member of the supervisory, monitoring or audit body of the legal person.
4. A legal person shall be criminally liable also when the crime has been committed on behalf of or through and/or in favour of the legal person, regardless of whether or not the identity of the natural person who committed the crime has been established.

4¹. A legal person shall be criminally liable also if, due to the improper performance of supervision and monitoring by the responsible person specified in paragraph 3 of this article, a natural person under the subordination of the legal person was able to commit the crime in favour of the legal person.

5. Releasing the responsible person from criminal liability shall not serve as grounds for releasing the legal person from criminal liability.

6. Criminal liability of a legal person shall not exclude criminal liability of the natural person with respect to the same crime.

7. Criminal liability shall not release the legal person from the obligation to indemnify the damage that he/she has caused as a result of the crime, or from other penalties established against him/her under legislation.

8. If the circumstances excluding the guilt or unlawfulness of the actions of a legal person are established, the legal person shall be released from criminal liability.

Article 107³ – Types of sentences

1. Types of punishment for legal persons shall be as follows:

- a) liquidation;
- b) deprivation of the right to carry out activities;
- c) fine;
- d) confiscation of property.

2. Liquidation and deprivation of the right to carry out activities may be imposed only as the basic punishment.

3. A fine may be imposed both as the basic and supplementary punishments.

4. Confiscation of property may be imposed only as a supplementary punishment.

Law of Georgia No 3530 of 25 July 2006 – LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 271

Article 107⁴ – Liquidation

1. When imposing liquidation as a sentence, the court shall, except for the cases provided for by the Organic Law of Georgia on the National Bank of Georgia, appoint the liquidator(s) who shall ensure the liquidation of the legal person under the statutory procedure for liquidating a legal person. Costs associated with the liquidation shall be borne by the convicted legal person.

2. In cases provided for by this Code, commercial banks and non-banking depository institutions shall be liquidated by the liquidator (liquidators) appointed by the National Bank of Georgia, based on the legally effective final judgement of conviction.

3. Liquidation may be used when, if it is established that criminal activities are the main purpose of the establishment of the legal person or the major part of its activities.

Article 107⁵ – Deprivation of the right to carry out activities

1. Deprivation of the right to carry out activities shall mean prohibiting a legal person from carrying out one or several types of activities indefinitely or for a term of one to ten years.

2. Deprivation of the right to carry out activities may apply to the activities during or with regard to the performance of which the crime was committed.

Law of Georgia No 3530 of 25 July 2006 – LHG I, No 37, 7.8.2006, Art. 271

Article 107⁶ – The fine

1. The minimum amount of a fine for a legal person shall correspond to a 50-fold amount of a fine considered for a natural person under Article 42 of this Code.

2. The amount of fine shall be determined by the court, taking into consideration the gravity of the crime, the benefit obtained from the crime and the material status of the legal person, which shall be defined by his/her property, income and other circumstances.

3. If it is impossible to collect a fine from a legal person as the basic punishment, this punishment shall be substituted by deprivation of the right to carry out activities or by liquidation.

4. If a fine is specified as both the basic and supplementary punishments in the note to an article of the Special Part of this Code, the fine shall not be applied as a supplementary punishment when it is applied as a basic punishment.
