German Criminal Code (Strafgesetzbuch – StGB)

Criminal Code in the version published on 13 November 1998 (Federal Law Gazette I, p. 3322), as last amended by Article 2 of the Act of 22 November 2021 (Federal Law Gazette I, p. 4906)

General Part

Division 1

The criminal law

Title 1

Scope of application

Section 1

No punishment without law

An act can only incur a penalty if criminal liability was established by law before the act was committed.

Section 2

Temporal application

- (1) The penalty and any incidental legal consequences are determined by the law which is in force at the time of the act.
- (2) If the threatened penalty is amended during the commission of the act, the law which is in force at the time the act is completed is to be applied.
- (3) If the law in force at the time of the completion of the act is amended before judgment, the most lenient law is to be applied.
- (4) A law which was intended to be in force only for a determinate time is, as a rule, still to be applied to acts committed whilst it was in force even after it ceases to be in force. This does not apply to the extent that a law provides otherwise.
- (5) Subsections (1) to (4) apply accordingly to the confiscation and rendering unusable of objects.
- (6) Unless otherwise provided by law, decisions as to measures of reform and prevention are to be taken according to the law which is in force at the time of decision.

Section 3

Application to offences committed on German territory

German criminal law applies to offences committed on German territory.

Section 4

Application to offences committed on German ships and aircraft

Regardless of which law is applicable at the place where the offence was committed, German criminal law applies to offences committed on a ship or an aircraft which is entitled to fly the federal flag or to carry the national insignia of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Section 5

 - b) in the cases under section 86a (1) no. 1 if a symbol is perceivably disseminated in Germany or used in content (section 11 (3)) which is made available to the public in Germany or perceivably disseminated in Germany and the offender is a German national or his or her livelihood is based in Germany,

Section 6

Offences committed abroad against internationally protected legal interests

Regardless of which law is applicable at the place where they are committed, German criminal law further applies to the following offences committed abroad:

1. (repealed)
2. serious crimes involving nuclear energy, explosives and radiation in the cases under section 307 and section 308 (1) to (4), section 309 (2) and section 310;
3. attacks on air and maritime traffic (section 316c);
4. human trafficking (section 232);
5. unauthorised sale of narcotics;
6. dissemination of pornographic content in the cases under section 184a, section 184b (1) and (2) and section 184c (1) and (2);

8. subsidy fraud (section 264);
9. offences which, based on an international agreement which is binding on the Federal Republic of Germany, are to be prosecuted even though they are committed abroad.

Section 7

Other offences committed abroad

(1) German criminal law applies to offences committed abroad against a German national if the act is a criminal offence at the place of its commission or if that place is not subject to any criminal law jurisdiction.

(2) German criminal law applies to other offences committed abroad if the act is a criminal offence at the place of its commission or if that place is not subject to any criminal law jurisdiction and if the offender

1. was a German national at the time of the offence or became a German national after its commission or

2. was a foreign national at the time of the offence, was found to be staying in Germany and, although extradition legislation would permit extradition for such an offence, is not extradited because no request for extradition is made within a reasonable period, is rejected or the extradition is not feasible.

Section 8

Time of offence

An offence is deemed to have been committed at the time when the offender or the participant acted or, in the case of an omission, was required to act. The time when the result occurs is irrelevant.

Section 9

Place of commission of offence

(1) An offence is deemed to have been committed at every place where the offender acted or, in the case of an omission, was required to act or in which the result, if it is an element of the offence, occurs or was to have occurred as envisaged by the offender.

(2) Acts of participation are not only committed at the place where the offence was committed, but also at every place where the participant acted or, in the case of an omission, was required to act or where, as envisaged by the participant, the offence was to have been committed. If the participant to an offence committed abroad acted within the territory of the Federal Republic of Germany, German criminal law applies to the participation even if the act is not a criminal offence according to the law of the place of its commission.

Section 10

Special provisions for juveniles and young adults

This statute only applies to offences committed by juveniles and young adults to the extent that the Youth Courts Act (Jugendgerichtsgesetz) does not provide otherwise.

Title 2

9. 'a consideration' means any pecuniary benefit given in exchange for someone's acts.

(2) An act is also deemed intentional for the purposes of this statute if it fulfils the statutory elements of an offence which requires intention in relation to the offender's conduct but permits negligence to suffice as to a specific result caused thereby.

(3) For the purposes of those provisions which refer to this subsection, 'content' means that which is contained in writings, on audio or visual media, on data carriers, in images or other materialised content or which is also transmitted independently of any storage using information or communication technologies.

Section 12

Serious and less serious criminal offences

(1) Serious criminal offences (Verbrechen) are unlawful acts which are punishable by a minimum term of imprisonment of one year.

(2) Less serious criminal offences (Vergehen) are unlawful acts which are punishable by a lesser minimum term of imprisonment or by a fine.

(3) Aggravations or mitigations provided for under the provisions of the General Part or in respect of especially serious or less serious cases are not subject to such classification.

Division 2

The act

Title 1

Basic principles of criminal liability

Section 13

Commission by omission

(1) Whoever fails to prevent a result which is an element of a criminal provision is only subject to criminal liability under this law if they are legally responsible for ensuring that the result does not occur and if the omission is equivalent to the realisation of the statutory elements of the offence through a positive act.

(2) The penalty may be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1).

Section 14

Acting as agent

(1) If a person acts

1. in the capacity as an organ which is authorised to represent a legal entity or as a member of such an organ,

2. in the capacity as a partner who is authorised to represent a partnership with legal capacity or

3. in the capacity as statutory representative of another,

then any law under which special personal attributes, relationships or circumstances (special personal characteristics) give rise to criminal liability also applies to the representative if these characteristics do not exist in the person of that representative but in the entity, partnership or person represented.

(2) If a person, whether by the owner of a business or somebody delegated by the owner to do so,

1. has been commissioned to manage the business in whole or in part or

2. has been expressly commissioned to perform autonomous duties which are incumbent upon the owner of the business and that person acts on the basis of this commission, then any law under which special personal characteristics give rise to criminal liability also applies to the person commissioned if these characteristics do not exist in the person commissioned but in the person of the owner of the business. An enterprise is equal to a business within the meaning of sentence

1. If a person acts on the basis of a similar commission for an agency performing public administrative services, sentence 1 applies analogously.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) apply even if the act of commission intended to create the power of representation or the agency is void.

Section 15

Intentional and negligent conduct

Unless the law expressly provides for criminal liability for negligent conduct, only intentional conduct attracts criminal liability.

Section 16

Mistake of fact

(1) Whoever, at the time of the commission of the offence, is unaware of a fact which is a statutory element of the offence is deemed to lack intention. Any criminal liability for negligence remains unaffected.

(2) Whoever, at the time of commission of the offence, mistakenly assumes the existence of facts which would satisfy the elements of a more lenient provision may only be punished for the intentional commission of the offence under the more lenient provision.

Section 17 Mistake of law

If, at the time of the commission of the offence, the offender lacks the awareness of acting unlawfully, then the offender is deemed to have acted without guilt if the mistake was unavoidable. If the mistake was avoidable, the penalty may be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1).

Section 18 More severe penalty based on specific results of offence

If the law imposes a more severe penalty based on a specific result of an offence, the offender or the participant is only liable to the more severe penalty in the event of being charged with at least negligence with respect to that result.

Section 19 Lack of criminal responsibility of children

Whoever is under 14 years of age at the time of the commission of the offence is deemed to act without guilt.

Section 20 Lack of criminal responsibility due to mental disorder

Whoever, at the time of the commission of the offence, is incapable of appreciating the unlawfulness of their actions or of acting in accordance with any such appreciation due to a pathological mental disorder, a profound disturbance of consciousness or intellectual disability or any other serious mental disorder is deemed to act without guilt.

Section 21 Diminished responsibility

If the offender's capacity to appreciate the unlawfulness of the act or to act in accordance with any such appreciation is substantially diminished at the time of the commission of the offence due to one of the reasons indicated in section 20, the penalty may be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1).

Title 2 Attempt

Section 22 Definition

Whoever takes a direct and immediate step towards the realisation of the offence as envisaged by them attempts to commit an offence.

Section 23 Criminal liability for attempt

(1) An attempt to commit a serious criminal offence always entails criminal liability, an attempt to commit a less serious criminal offence only if expressly so provided by law.

(2) A more lenient penalty may be imposed for an attempt than for a completed offence (section 49 (1)).

(3) If the offender fails to realise, due to gross ignorance, that the attempt could under no circumstances have led to the completion of the offence on account of the nature of its object or the means by which it was to be committed, the court may dispense with imposing a penalty or may mitigate the penalty at its discretion (section 49 (2)).

Section 24
Abandonment of attempt

(1) Whoever voluntarily abandons the further commission of the offence or prevents its completion incurs no penalty for attempt. If the offence is not completed without any action on the part of the person abandoning the attempt, no penalty is incurred if that person has made voluntary and earnest efforts to prevent the completion of the offence.

(2) If more than one person participates in the offence, then whoever voluntarily prevents its completion incurs no penalty for attempt. That person's voluntary and earnest efforts to prevent the completion of the offence suffice for exemption from punishment if the offence is not completed without any action on that person's part or it is committed independently of that person's earlier contribution to the offence.

Title 3
Commission and participation

Section 25
Commission of offence

(1) Whoever commits an offence themselves or through another incurs a penalty as an offender.

(2) If several persons commit an offence jointly, each person incurs a penalty as an offender (joint offenders).

Section 26
Abetting

Whoever intentionally induces another to intentionally commit an unlawful act (abettor) incurs the same penalty as an offender.

Section 27
Aiding

(1) Whoever intentionally assists another in the intentional commission of an unlawful act incurs a penalty as an aider.

(2) The penalty for the aider is determined in accordance with the penalty threatened for the offender. It must be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1).

Section 28
Special personal characteristics

(1) If special personal characteristics (section 14 (1)) which establish the offender's criminal liability are absent in the participant (abettor or aider), the penalty must be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1).

(2) If the law provides that special personal characteristics aggravate, mitigate or rule out punishment, then this applies only to that party to the offence (offender or participant) in whom they are present.

Section 29
Separate criminal liability of parties to offence

Each party to an offence incurs a penalty according to the measure of their own guilt and irrespective of the guilt of another.

Section 30
Attempted participation

(1) Whoever attempts to induce or incite another to commit a serious criminal offence incurs a penalty under the terms of the provisions governing attempted serious criminal offences. The penalty must, however, be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1). Section 23 (3) applies accordingly.

(2) Whoever declares their willingness or accepts the offer of another or agrees with another to commit or incite to the commission of a serious criminal offence incurs the same penalty.

Section 31
Withdrawal from attempted participation

(1) Whoever voluntarily

1. abandons the attempt to induce another to commit a serious criminal offence and averts any existing danger that the other may commit the offence,
2. abandons their plans after previously having declared their willingness to commit a serious criminal offence or
3. prevents the commission of an offence after previously having agreed to commit a serious criminal offence or having accepted the offer of another to commit a serious criminal offence does not incur the penalty under section 30.

(2) If the offence is not completed without any action on the offender's part or if it is committed independently of his or her previous conduct, the offender's voluntary and earnest efforts to prevent the completion of the offence suffices for exemption from punishment.

Title 4
Self-defence and necessity

Section 32
Self-defence

(1) Whoever commits an act in self-defence does not act unlawfully.

(2) 'Self-defence' means any defensive action which is necessary to avert a present unlawful attack on oneself or another.

Section 33
Excessive self-defence

Whoever exceeds the limits of self-defence due to confusion, fear or fright incurs no penalty.

Section 34
Necessity as justification

Whoever, when faced with a present danger to life, limb, liberty, honour, property or another legal interest which cannot otherwise be averted, commits an act to avert the danger from themselves or another is not deemed to act unlawfully if, upon weighing the conflicting interests, in particular the affected legal interests and the degree of the danger facing them, the protected interest substantially outweighs the one interfered with. However, this only applies to the extent that the act committed is an adequate means to avert the danger.

Section 35
Necessity as defence

(1) Whoever, when faced with a present danger to life, limb or liberty which cannot otherwise be averted, commits an unlawful act to avert the danger from themselves, a relative or close person acts without guilt. This does not apply to the extent that the offender could be expected, under the circumstances, to accept the danger, in particular because said offender caused the danger or because of the existence of a special legal relationship; the penalty may, however, be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1), unless the offender was required to accept the danger on account of the existence of a special legal relationship.

(2) If, at the time of the commission of the act, a person mistakenly assumes that circumstances exist which would provide an excuse under the terms of subsection (1), that person incurs a penalty only if the mistake was avoidable. The penalty must be mitigated pursuant to section 49 (1).

Title 5
Immunity for statements and reports made in parliament

Section 36
Parliamentary statements

Members of the Bundestag, the Federal Convention or of a legislative body of one of the Länder may at no time be held liable outside of the body on account of a vote they cast or a statement they made within one of those bodies or one of their committees. This does not apply to defamatory insults.

Section 37
Parliamentary reports

Truthful reports about the public sessions of the bodies referred to in section 36 or their committees do not give rise to any liability.

Division 3
Legal consequences

Title 1
Penalties

Imprisonment

Section 38
Term of imprisonment

- (1) Imprisonment is for a fixed term, unless the law provides for imprisonment for life.
- (2) The maximum term of a fixed-term period of imprisonment is 15 years, the minimum term one month.

Section 39
Determination of term of imprisonment

Imprisonment for a term of less than one year is determined in full weeks and months, imprisonment for a longer term in full months and years.

Fine

Section 40
Daily rates

- (1) A fine is imposed in daily rates. The minimum fine is five and, unless otherwise provided by law, the maximum is 360 full daily rates.
- (2) The court determines the amount of the daily rate having regard to the offender's personal and financial circumstances. In doing so, it typically bases its assessment on the average net income which the offender earns or could earn in one day. A daily rate is set at no less than 1 euro and no more than 30,000 euros.
- (3) The offender's income and assets and other relevant assessment factors may be estimated when setting the amount of the daily rate.
- (4) The number and amount of the daily rates are indicated in the decision.

Section 41
Fine in addition to imprisonment

If the offence has led to the actual or attempted enrichment of the offender, then, in addition to a term of imprisonment, a fine which would not otherwise have been provided for, or only in the alternative, may be imposed if, having regard to the offender's personal and financial circumstances, this appears appropriate.

Section 42
Relaxation of payment conditions

If a convicted person cannot, due to personal or financial circumstances, be expected to pay the full fine immediately, the court is to allow a certain time for payment or is to allow payment in specified instalments. The court may order that the privilege of paying the fine in specified instalments is to be revoked if the convicted person fails to pay an instalment in time. The court is also, as a rule, to relax payment conditions if otherwise the offender's restitution of any damage caused by the offence would be substantially impaired; the court may require the convicted person to present proof of restitution having been made.

Section 43 Default imprisonment

If a fine cannot be recovered, it is to be substituted by imprisonment. One daily rate corresponds to one day of imprisonment. The minimum term of default imprisonment for failure to pay a fine is one day.

Additional penalty

Section 44 Driving ban

(1) If a person has been sentenced to imprisonment or to a fine for an offence, the court may ban the offender from driving all classes of motor vehicle or a specific class of motor vehicle on public roads for a period of between one month and six months. Imposition of a driving ban may in particular be considered in cases where the offence was not committed whilst or in connection with the driving of a motor vehicle or in breach of the duties of a driver of a motor vehicle if this appears necessary either to have an influence on the offender or to defend the legal order or if it means imposition of a sentence of imprisonment or its enforcement can thereby be avoided. A driving ban is typically to be imposed in the cases of conviction pursuant to section 315c (1) no. 1 (a), (3) or section 316 if disqualification from driving pursuant to section 69 is not ordered.

(2) The driving ban takes effect when the driving licence is confiscated upon the judgment having become final, but no later than one month after the judgment has become final. National and international driving licences issued by a German authority are to be confiscated for the duration of the ban. This also applies if the driving licence was issued by an authority of a Member State of the European Union or another Contracting Party to the Agreement on the European Economic Area if the holder is ordinarily resident in Germany. The driving ban is endorsed on any other foreign driving licences.

(3) If a driving licence is to be confiscated or the driving ban to be endorsed on a foreign driving licence, the duration of the ban is calculated from the day on which those conditions are met. Any period during which the offender was detained in an institution by official order does not count towards the duration.

(4) If the court has imposed several driving bans against an offender which have become final, the durations of these bans are to be calculated consecutively. The duration of the ban which has become final first runs first. If more than one driving ban becomes final at the same time, the duration of the ban which was imposed first runs first, and if the driving bans were ordered at the same time, the time of the earlier offence is decisive.

Incidental legal consequences

Section 45 Loss of ability to hold public office, to vote and be elected

(1) Whoever is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least one year for a serious criminal offence loses the ability, for a period of five years, to hold public office and be elected in public elections.

(2) The court may deprive a convicted person of the abilities referred to in subsection (1) for a period of between two and five years insofar as the law expressly so provides.

(3) At the same time that the loss of ability to hold public office takes effect, the convicted person also loses any corresponding legal positions and rights which he or she may be holding at that time.

(4) At the same time that the loss of ability to be elected in public elections takes effect, the convicted person loses any corresponding legal positions and rights which they may be holding, unless otherwise provided by law.

(5) The court may deprive the convicted person of the right to vote on public matters for a period of between two and five years insofar as the law expressly so provides.

Section 45a

Entry into effect and calculation of duration

(1) The loss of the abilities, legal status and rights takes effect upon the judgment becoming final.

(2) The duration of the loss of an ability or of a right is calculated from the day on which the sentence of imprisonment has been served, barred by the statute of limitations or remitted. If a measure of reform and prevention involving deprivation of liberty was ordered in addition to imprisonment, the duration begins on the day on which that measure was disposed of.

(3) If enforcement of the sentence, the remainder of the sentence or the measure was suspended on probation or by an act of clemency, any probation period is included when calculating the duration if, after its expiry, the sentence or the remainder thereof was remitted or the measure was disposed of.

Section 45b

Reinstatement of abilities and rights

(1) The court may reinstate any abilities and rights lost pursuant to section 45 (1) and (2) and any rights lost pursuant to section 45 (5) if

1. the loss has been in effect for half of its intended duration and
2. it is to be expected that the convicted person will commit no further intentional offences.

(2) Any period during which the convicted person was detained in an institution by official order is not taken into account.

Title 2

Fixing of penalties

Section 46

General principles

(1) The offender's guilt provides the basis on which the penalty is fixed. The effects which the penalty can be expected to have on the offender's future life in society are to be taken into account.

(2) When fixing the penalty the court weighs the circumstances which speak in favour of and those which speak against the offender. The following, in particular, may be taken into consideration:

the offender's motives and objectives, in particular including racist, xenophobic, antisemitic or other motives evidencing contempt for humanity, the attitude reflected in the offence and the degree of force of will involved in its commission,

the degree of the breach of the offender's duties, the modus operandi and the consequences caused by the offence to the extent that the offender is to blame for them, the offender's prior history, personal and financial circumstances, and the offender's conduct in the period following the offence, in particular efforts to make restitution for the harm caused as well as efforts at reconciliation with the victim.

(3) No consideration may be given to circumstances which are already statutory elements of the offence.

Section 46a Victim–offender mediation, restitution

If the offender,

1. in an effort to achieve reconciliation with the victim (victim–offender mediation), has made restitution for the act committed in full or to a substantial degree or has earnestly striven to make restitution or
2. in a case in which making restitution for the harm caused required substantial personal effort or personal sacrifice on the offender's part, has made compensation to the victim in full or to a substantial degree, then the court may mitigate the penalty pursuant to section 49 (1) or, if the sentence to be imposed on the offender is no more than imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or a fine not exceeding 360 daily rates, it may dispense with imposing a penalty.

Section 46b Contributing to discovery or prevention of serious crimes

(1) If the perpetrator of a criminal offence which is punishable by an increased minimum sentence of imprisonment or imprisonment for life

1. has, by voluntarily disclosing what he or she knows, contributed substantially to the detection of one of the offences under section 100a (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Strafprozeßordnung) which is related to his or her own offence or
2. voluntarily discloses what he or she knows to an authority in time to prevent the completion of one of the offences under section 100a (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure which is related to his or her own offence, the planning of which the perpetrator is aware of,

then the court may mitigate the penalty pursuant to section 49 (1), whereby the threatened penalty of imprisonment for life is substituted by imprisonment for a term of at least 10 years. In order to determine whether an offence is punishable by an increased minimum sentence of imprisonment, only aggravations for especially serious cases are taken into account but no mitigations. If the offender participated in the act, the contribution made to its detection in accordance with sentence 1 no. 1 must exceed the offender's own contribution to the act. Instead of reducing the sentence, the court may dispense with imposing a penalty if the threatened penalty for the offence is only a determinate sentence of imprisonment and the offender would not be sentenced to a term exceeding three years.

(2) In arriving at its decision under subsection (1), the court must have particular regard to:

1. the nature and scope of the disclosed facts and their relevance to the discovery or prevention of the offence, the time of disclosure, the degree of support which the offender gave to the prosecuting authorities and the severity of the offence to which the offender's disclosure relates as well as
2. the relationship between the circumstances referred to in no. 1 and the severity of the offence committed and the degree of the offender's guilt.

(3) Mitigation of penalty or dispensing with imposing a penalty in accordance with subsection (1) is ruled out if the offender does not disclose what he or she knows until after main proceedings have been opened against him or her (section 207 of the Code of Criminal Procedure).

Section 47

Short terms of imprisonment only as exception

(1) The court only imposes a term of imprisonment of less than six months where special circumstances exist, either in the offence or the offender's character, which strictly require the imposition of imprisonment either to have an influence on the offender or to defend the legal order.

(2) If the law does not provide for a fine and a term of imprisonment of six months or more is ruled out, the court imposes a fine, unless the imposition of a sentence of imprisonment is strictly required under subsection (1). If the law provides for an increased minimum sentence of imprisonment, the minimum fine in the cases under sentence 1 is determined by the minimum sentence of imprisonment; 30 daily rates correspond to one month's imprisonment.

Section 48 (repealed)

Section 49

Special mitigating circumstances established by law

(1) If the law requires or allows for mitigation under this provision, the following applies:

1. Imprisonment for life is substituted by imprisonment for a term of at least three years.
2. In cases of imprisonment for a fixed term, no more than three quarters of the statutory maximum sentence may be imposed. In case of a fine, the same applies to the maximum number of daily rates.
3. Any increased minimum statutory term of imprisonment is reduced as follows:
in the case of a minimum term of ten or five years, to two years, in the case of a minimum term of three or two years, to six months, in the case of a minimum term of one year, to three months,
in all other cases to the statutory minimum.

(2) If the court may, at its discretion, mitigate the penalty pursuant to a law which refers to this provision, it may reduce the penalty to the statutory minimum or impose a fine instead of imprisonment.

Section 50

Multiple mitigating circumstances

A circumstance which, alone or together with other circumstances, justifies the assumption that the case is a less serious one and which simultaneously represents a special statutory mitigating circumstance as referred to in section 49 may only be considered once.

Section 51

Crediting of time spent in remand detention

(1) If a convicted person was remanded in detention or otherwise subjected to deprivation of liberty because of an offence which is or was the subject of the proceedings, that time is credited against a determinate sentence of imprisonment or a fine. The court may, however, order that such time not be credited in whole or in part if, in the light of the convicted person's conduct after the offence, this is not justified.

(2) If, in subsequent proceedings, another sentence is substituted for a previously imposed sentence after that sentence becomes final, time served under or credited against the earlier sentence is credited against the new sentence.

(3) If a convicted person has already been sentenced abroad for the same offence, the foreign sentence, to the extent it has been enforced, is credited against the new sentence. Subsection (1) applies accordingly to any other deprivation of liberty suffered abroad.

(4) When crediting a fine against time spent in remand detention or vice versa, one day in which a person is deprived of their liberty corresponds to one daily rate. Where a foreign penalty or deprivation of liberty is to be credited, the court determines the rate at its discretion.

(5) When crediting a period of provisional disqualification from driving (section 111a of the Code of Criminal Procedure) against a driving ban in accordance with section 44, subsection (1) applies accordingly. To that end, the taking into custody, securing or seizure of the driving licence (section 94 of the Code of Criminal Procedure) is equivalent to provisional disqualification from driving.

Title 3

Fixing of penalties for multiple offences

Section 52

Several offences committed by one act

(1) If the same act violates more than one criminal statute or the same criminal statute more than once, only one penalty is imposed.

(2) If more than one criminal statute has been violated, the penalty is determined according to the statute which provides for the most severe penalty. The penalty may not be more lenient than the other applicable statutes permit.

(3) Under the conditions of section 41, the court may separately impose a fine in addition to a sentence of imprisonment.

(4) Additional penalties, incidental legal consequences and measures (section 11 (1) no. 8) must or may be imposed if one of the applicable statutes so requires or allows.

Section 53

Joinder of offences

(1) If a person has committed several offences, all of which are to be adjudicated at the same time, and that person has incurred more than one sentence of imprisonment or more than one fine, an aggregate sentence is imposed.

(2) If a sentence of imprisonment concurs with a fine, an aggregate sentence is imposed. The court may, however, impose a separate fine; where a fine is to be imposed in such cases for more than one offence, an aggregate fine is imposed.

(3) Section 52 (3) and (4) applies analogously.

Section 54

Fixing of aggregate sentence

(1) If one of the penalties for the individual offences is imprisonment for life, an aggregate sentence of imprisonment for life is imposed. In all other cases, the aggregate sentence is fixed by increasing the most severe individual sentence incurred and, in the case of different kinds of penalties, by increasing the sentence which is most severe in nature. The person of the offender and the individual offences are considered in their totality.

(2) The aggregate sentence may not exceed the sum of the individual sentences. In the case of determinate sentences of imprisonment, it may not exceed 15 years and in the case of a fine 720 daily rates.

(3) Where an aggregate sentence is to be formed of a sentence of imprisonment and a fine, one daily rate corresponds to one day's imprisonment for the purpose of calculating the sum of the individual sentences.

Section 55

Subsequent fixing of aggregate sentence

(1) Sections 53 and 54 also apply to a convicted person who has had a sentence imposed by final judgment if that person is convicted of another offence committed prior to the earlier conviction before the original sentence is enforced, barred by the statute of limitations or remitted. The earlier conviction is the judgment in those proceedings in which the underlying findings of fact were last examined.

(2) Additional penalties, incidental legal consequences and measures (section 11 (1) no. 8) imposed in the earlier decision are to be upheld to the extent they have not been rendered moot by the new decision.

Title 4 Suspension of sentence on probation

Section 56 Suspension of sentence

(1) If a person is sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, the court suspends enforcement of the sentence on probation if there are reasons to believe that the sentence itself will serve as sufficient warning to the convicted person and that the convicted person will commit no further offences even without having to serve the sentence. The court is, in particular, to take account of the convicted person's character and previous history, the circumstances of the offence committed, the convicted person's circumstances and conduct in the period following the offence, and the effects to be expected from the suspension.

(2) Under the conditions of subsection (1), the court may also suspend enforcement of a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding two years on probation if, after an overall evaluation of the offence and of the convicted person's character, special circumstances are deemed to exist. In making its decision, the court is, in particular, to take account of any efforts on the convicted person's part to make restitution for the harm caused by the offence.

(3) Enforcement of imprisonment for a term of at least six months is not suspended if the defence of the legal order so requires.

(4) The suspension may not be limited to a part of the sentence. It is not ruled out by any crediting of time spent in remand detention or another form of deprivation of liberty.

Section 56a Probation period

(1) The court determines the length of the period of probation. It may not exceed five years nor be less than two years.

(2) The probation period commences when the decision to suspend the sentence becomes final. It may subsequently be reduced to the minimum or extended to the maximum before its expiry.

Section 56b Conditions

(1) The court may impose conditions on the convicted person which serve to make amends for the harm caused. No unreasonable demands may be made of the convicted person.

(2) The court may require the convicted person

1. to make every effort at restitution for the harm caused by the offence,
2. to pay a sum of money to a charitable organisation if this appears appropriate in the light of the offence and the offender's character,
3. to perform community service or
4. to pay a sum of money to the Treasury.

The court is, as a rule, only to impose a condition as required by sentence 1 nos. 2 to 4 if fulfilment of the condition poses no obstacle to the making of restitution for the harm caused.

(3) If the convicted person offers to render appropriate services for the purpose of making amends for the harm caused, the court typically preliminarily dispenses with imposing conditions if it is to be expected that the offer will be fulfilled.

Section 56c Directions

(1) The court is to issue directions to the convicted person for the duration of the probation period if that person requires such assistance in order to abstain from committing further offences. No unreasonable demands may be made in respect of the convicted person's lifestyle.

(2) The court may, in particular, direct the convicted person

1. to follow instructions relating to residence, education, work or leisure, or to getting his or her financial affairs in order,
2. to report at certain times to the court or another authority,
3. not to make contact or associate with the injured party or specific persons or persons from a specific group who may induce the convicted person to commit further offences, nor to employ, train or accommodate them,
4. not to possess, carry or entrust to another for safekeeping certain objects which could induce the convicted person to commit further offences or
5. to meet maintenance obligations.

(3) A direction

1. to undergo medical treatment of an invasive nature or addiction treatment or
2. to take up residence in a suitable home or suitable institution

may only be given with the convicted person's consent.

(4) If the convicted person gives assurances relating to his or her future conduct, the court typically provisionally refrains from issuing directions if it is to be expected that the assurances will be fulfilled.

Section 56d Probation services

(1) The court places the convicted person under the supervision and guidance of a probation officer for all or part of the probation period if this appears necessary to prevent the convicted person from committing criminal offences.

(2) The court typically issues directions as required by subsection (1) if it suspends a sentence of imprisonment of more than nine months and the convicted person is under 27 years of age.

(3) The probation officer offers assistance and support to the convicted person. In consultation with the court, the probation officer monitors compliance with conditions and directions as well as with offers and assurances made and, at intervals determined by the court, reports on the convicted person's conduct. The probation officer must inform the court about serious or persistent breaches of the conditions, directions, offers or assurances.

(4) The probation officer is appointed by the court. The court may give the probation officer instructions in regard to the functions under subsection (3).

(5) The functions of a probation officer are exercised as a main occupation or in an honorary capacity.

Section 56e Subsequent decisions

The court may also make, modify or set aside decisions pursuant to sections 56b to 56d at a later date.

Section 56f Revocation of suspension of sentence

(1) The court is to revoke the suspension of the sentence on probation if the convicted person

1. commits an offence during the probation period, and thereby shows that the expectation on which the suspension was based has not been fulfilled,
2. grossly or persistently violates directions or persistently evades the probation officer's supervision and guidance, thereby giving reason to fear that the convicted person will re-offend or
3. grossly or persistently violates conditions.

Sentence 1 no. 1 applies accordingly if the offence was committed in the period between the decision to suspend the sentence being taken and its becoming final or, in the case of subsequent fixing of an aggregate sentence, in the period between the decision to suspend the sentence in a judgment which was included in the aggregate sentence and the date on which the aggregate sentence became final.

(2) The court is, however, not to revoke the suspension of the sentence on probation if it is of the opinion that it would suffice

1. to impose further conditions or issue further directions, in particular to place the convicted person under the supervision and guidance of a probation officer or
2. to extend the probation period or period of supervision of conduct.

In the cases under no. 2, the probation period may not be extended for more than one half of the originally imposed period.

(3) The convicted person is not to be compensated for services rendered in the fulfilment of conditions, offers, directions or assurances. If the suspension on probation is revoked, the court may, however, credit services towards the sentence which the convicted person has rendered to comply with conditions issued under section 56b (2) sentence 1 nos. 2 to 4 or related offers in accordance with section 56b (3).

Section 56g Remission of sentence

- (1) If the court does not revoke the suspension of the sentence, the sentence is to be remitted after expiry of the probation period. Section 56f (3) sentence 1 applies.
- (2) The court may revoke such remission if the convicted person has been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least six months for an intentional offence committed during the probation period. The revocation may only be declared within one year after expiry of the probation period and six months after the new judgment has become final. Section 56f (1) sentence 2 and (3) applies accordingly.

Section 57 Suspension of remainder of determinate sentence of imprisonment

- (1) The court suspends enforcement of the remainder of a determinate sentence of imprisonment on probation if
 1. two thirds of the imposed sentence, but at least two months, have been served,
 2. this can be justified having regard to public security interests and
 3. the convicted person consents thereto.

The decision is, in particular, to take into consideration the convicted person's character, previous history, the circumstances of the offence, the importance of the legal interest endangered should the convicted person re-offend, the convicted person's life circumstances and conduct whilst serving the sentence imposed, and the effects which such suspension are expected to have on the convicted person.

(2) After one half of a determinate sentence of imprisonment has been served, but at least six months, the court may suspend enforcement of the remainder of the sentence on probation if

1. the convicted person is serving a first sentence of imprisonment and the term does not exceed two years or
2. following an overall evaluation of the offence, the convicted person's character and development whilst serving the sentence imposed, special circumstances are deemed to exist and the remaining conditions of subsection (1) are met.

(3) Sections 56a to 56g apply accordingly; the probation period, even if subsequently reduced, may not be less than the remainder of the sentence. If the convicted person has served at least one year of the sentence imposed before the remainder is suspended on probation, the court typically places the convicted person under the supervision and guidance of a probation officer for all or a part of the probation period.

(4) Where a sentence of imprisonment has been reduced by crediting time served, it is deemed to have been served within the meaning of subsections (1) to (3).

(5) Sections 56f and 56g apply accordingly. The court is also to revoke the suspension of the sentence if, in the period between the conviction and the decision to suspend the sentence, the convicted person has committed an offence which could for factual reasons not be taken into account by the court when deciding to suspend the sentence and which would have led to a denial of such suspension had it been known at that time; the judgment in those proceedings in which the underlying findings of fact were last examined counts as the conviction.

(6) The court may dispense with suspending enforcement of the remainder of a determinate sentence of imprisonment on probation if the convicted person makes insufficient or false statements concerning the whereabouts of objects which are subject to confiscation of the proceeds of crime.

(7) The court may fix a term not exceeding six months before the expiry of which an application by the convicted person for the suspension of sentence on probation is inadmissible.

Section 57a

Suspension of remainder of imprisonment for life

(1) The court suspends enforcement of the remainder of a sentence of imprisonment for life on probation where

1. 15 years of the sentence have been served,
2. the particular severity of the convicted person's guilt does not require its continued enforcement and
3. the conditions of section 57 (1) sentence 1 nos. 2 and 3 are met.

Section 57 (1) sentence 2 and (6) applies accordingly.

(2) Any deprivation of liberty suffered by the convicted person as a result of the offence qualifies as a sentence served within the meaning of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 1.

(3) The probation period is five years. Section 56a (2) sentence 1, sections 56b to 56g and section 57 (3) sentence 2 and (5) sentence 2 apply accordingly.

(4) The court may fix terms not exceeding two years before the expiry of which an application by the convicted person for the suspension of sentence on probation is inadmissible.

Section 57b

Suspension of remainder of aggregate sentence of imprisonment for life

If imprisonment for life has been imposed as an aggregate sentence, the individual offences are assessed collectively when determining the particular severity of guilt (section 57a (1) sentence 1 no. 2).

Section 58

Aggregate sentence and suspension of sentence

- (1) If a person has committed more than one offence, the length of the aggregate sentence is decisive as regards the suspension of sentence in accordance with section 56.
- (2) If, in the cases under section 55 (1), enforcement of the previous sentence of imprisonment has been suspended on probation or the remainder of the sentence has been suspended on probation, and if the aggregate sentence has also been suspended on probation, the minimum new probation period is reduced by any probation period which has already expired, but not to less than one year. If the aggregate sentence is not suspended on probation, section 56f (3) applies accordingly.

Title 5

Warning with sentence reserved, dispensing with penalty

Section 59

Conditions for warning with sentence reserved

(1) If a person has incurred a fine not exceeding 180 daily rates, the court may issue a warning at the time of conviction, may indicate the sentence and reserve imposition of the penalty if

1. it is to be expected that the offender will commit no further criminal offences even without the immediate imposition of the sentence,
2. following an overall evaluation of the offence and the offender's character, special circumstances are deemed to exist which render the imposition of a sentence unnecessary and
3. the defence of the legal order does not demand the imposition of a penalty.

Section 56 (1) sentence 2 applies accordingly.

(2) Ancillary orders for confiscation or rendering unusable may be imposed in addition to a warning. A warning with sentence reserved is not permissible in addition to measures of reform and prevention.

Section 59a

Probation period, conditions and directions

(1) The court determines the length of the probation period. It may not exceed two years nor be less than one year.

(2) The court may direct the convicted person

1. to make efforts at reconciliation with the victim or make restitution by other means for the harm caused by the offence,
2. to meet maintenance obligations,
3. to pay a sum of money to a charitable organisation or the Treasury,
4. to undergo outpatient medical treatment or outpatient addiction treatment,
5. to participate in a social training course or
6. to participate in road traffic training.

No unreasonable demands may be made in respect of the convicted person's lifestyle; the conditions and directions referred to in sentence 1 nos. 3 to 6 may also not be disproportionate to the significance of the offence committed. Section 56c (3) and (4) and section 56e apply accordingly.

Section 59b

Imposition of sentence reserved

- (1) Section 56f applies accordingly to the imposition of a sentence reserved.
- (2) If no reserved sentence is imposed, then upon expiry of the probation period the court declares that the warning is sufficient.

Section 59c

Aggregate sentence and warning with sentence reserved

- (1) If a person has committed more than one offence, then, in the case of a warning with sentence reserved, sections 53 to 55 apply accordingly when determining the penalty.
- (2) If the convicted person is subsequently sentenced to a fine or to a term of imprisonment for an offence committed before the warning was given, the provisions for fixing an aggregate sentence (sections 53 to 55 and 58) apply, with the proviso that the sentence reserved is, for the purposes of section 55, deemed equivalent to a penalty imposed.

Section 60

Dispensing with penalty

The court dispenses with imposing a penalty if the consequences of the offence suffered by the offender are so serious that the imposition of penalties would clearly be inappropriate. This does not apply if the offender has incurred a penalty of imprisonment for a term of more than one year for the offence.

Title 6

Measures of reform and prevention

Section 61

Overview

Measures of reform and prevention are

1. placement in a psychiatric hospital,
2. placement in an addiction treatment facility,
3. placement in preventive detention,
4. supervision of conduct,
5. disqualification from driving,
6. disqualification from exercising a profession.

Section 62

Principle of proportionality

A measure of reform and prevention may not be ordered if it is disproportionate to the severity of the offence committed by or expected to be committed by the offender and to the degree of danger which the offender poses to society.

Measures involving deprivation of liberty

Section 63

Placement in psychiatric hospital

If a person has committed an unlawful act in a state of criminal irresponsibility (section 20) or in a state of diminished responsibility (section 21), the court orders that person's placement in a psychiatric hospital if the overall evaluation of the offender and of the offence reveals that, due to the offender's condition, he or she represents a danger to the general public on account of it being expected that he or she will in future commit serious unlawful acts which will result in the victims of the offence suffering or being exposed to the considerable danger of severe emotional trauma or physical injury or which will cause serious economic damage. If the unlawful act which has been committed is not an offence as referred to in sentence 1, the court only makes such an order if special circumstances justify the expectation that, due to the offender's condition, the offender will in future commit such serious offences.

Section 64

Placement in addiction treatment facility

If a person has an addiction to alcoholic drinks or other intoxicating substances and is convicted of an unlawful act which was committed in a state of intoxication or as a result of an addiction, or the person is not convicted only on account of the finding of a lack of criminal responsibility or the lack of criminal responsibility cannot be ruled out on the evidence, the court is, as a rule, to order placement in an addiction treatment facility if there is a danger that said person will in future commit serious unlawful acts as a consequence of this proclivity. Such order is only to be made if there is a sufficiently reasonable prospect that the person can be cured within the period referred to in section 67d (1) sentence 1 or 3 by way of placement in an addiction treatment facility or that a relapse into addictive behaviour and the commission of serious unlawful acts caused by that proclivity can be prevented for a substantial period of time.

Section 65 (repealed)

Section 66

Placement in preventive detention

(1) The court orders preventive detention in addition to a sentence of imprisonment where

1. a person has been sentenced for an intentional offence to imprisonment for a term of at least two years and
 - a) the offence was directed against life, physical integrity, personal liberty or sexual self-determination,
 - b) the offence falls under Division 1, 7, 20 or 28 of the Special Part or under the Code of Crimes against International Law (Völkerstrafgesetzbuch) or the Narcotics Act (Betäubungsmittelgesetz) and the maximum possible sentence is imprisonment for a term of at least 10 years or
 - c) the conditions of section 145a are met insofar as an order was made for the supervision of conduct on the basis of an offence under letter (a) or (b), or if the conditions of section 323a are met insofar as the offence committed in a state of intoxication was one of those referred to in letter (a) or (b),
2. the offender has twice been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least one year in each case for offences under no. 1 which were committed prior to the present offence,
3. the offender has served at least a two-year sentence of imprisonment or was under a measure of reform and prevention involving deprivation of liberty for at least one of these offences prior to the present offence and
4. an overall evaluation of the offender and the offences committed leads to the conclusion that, on account of the propensity to commit serious crimes, in particular of a type which results in severe emotional trauma or physical injury to the victim, the offender poses a danger to the general public at the time of the conviction.

Section 12 (3) applies accordingly in respect of the classification of an offence under sentence 1 no. 1 (b) and section 68 (1) sentence 4 for the termination of the supervision of conduct referred to in sentence 1 no. 1 (c).

(2) If a person has committed three offences of the type referred to in subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 1, for each of which a penalty of imprisonment for a term of at least one year was incurred and a sentence of imprisonment for a term of at least three years for one or more of these offences was imposed, the court may, under the conditions of subsection (1)

sentence 1 no. 4, order preventive detention in addition to the sentence of imprisonment even if there was no prior deprivation of liberty (subsection (1) sentence 1 nos. 2 and 3). (3) If a person is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least two years for a serious criminal offence which fulfils the conditions of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 1 (a) or (b), or for an offence under section 89a (1) to (3), section 89c (1) to (3), section 129a (5) sentence 1 alternative 1, also in conjunction with section 129b (1), sections 174 to 174c, section 176a, section 176b, section 177 (2) no. 1, (3) and (6), sections 180, 182 and 224 and section 225 (1) or (2), or for an intentional offence under section 323a, insofar as the offence committed in a state of intoxication is one of the aforementioned unlawful acts, then the court may order preventive detention in addition to the sentence if the offender was already sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least three years for one or more such offences committed prior to the new offence and if the conditions of subsection (1) sentence 1 nos. 3 and 4 are met. If a person has committed two of the offences referred to in sentence 1 for each of which they have incurred a penalty of imprisonment for a term of at least two years, and if they are sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least three years for one or more such offences, then the court may, under the conditions of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 4, order preventive detention in addition to the sentence even in the absence of a prior conviction or deprivation of liberty (subsection (1) sentence 1 nos. 2 and 3). Subsections (1) and (2) remain unaffected.

(4) Within the meaning of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 2, an aggregate sentence is deemed to be a single sentence. If time spent in remand detention or other deprivation of liberty is credited against a sentence of imprisonment, it is deemed to be time served for the purposes of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 3. A previous offence is not considered if more than five years have elapsed between its commission and the subsequent offence; in the case of offences against sexual self-determination, this period is 15 years. Any period during which the offender was detained in an institution by official order is not included is not taken into account. An offence adjudicated outside the territorial scope of this statute is deemed to be equivalent to an offence adjudicated within the territorial scope of this statute if it would represent an offence of the type referred to in subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 1, under German criminal law or, in the cases under subsection (3), it would be a criminal offence of the type referred to in subsection (3) sentence 1.

Section 66a Preventive detention reserved

(1) The court may reserve preventive detention if

1. a person is convicted of one of the offences under section 66 (3) sentence 1,
2. the remaining conditions of section 66 (3) are met, unless that provision makes reference to section 66 (1) sentence 1 no. 4 and
3. it is not possible to determine with sufficient certainty but it is probable that the conditions of section 66 (1) sentence 1 no. 4 are met.

(2) The court may also reserve preventive detention if

1. a person is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least five years for one or more serious criminal offences directed against life, physical integrity, personal liberty, sexual self-determination, under Division 28 or under sections 250 and 251, also in conjunction with section 252 or 255,
2. the conditions of section 66b are not met and
3. it is possible to determine with sufficient certainty or it is at least probable that the conditions of section 66 (1) sentence 1 no. 4 are met.

(3) The court of first instance may take a decision in regard to preventive detention reserved in accordance with subsections (1) or (2) no later than the date on which the prisoner will have served the sentence imposed in full; this also applies where enforcement of the remainder of the sentence was suspended on probation and the remainder of the sentence is being enforced. The court makes the order if an overall evaluation of the convicted person, the offence or offences committed and also the convicted person's development up until the date of the decision indicate that there is less likelihood of any further serious offences being committed by that person resulting in severe emotional trauma or physical injury to the victims.

Section 66b

Subsequent order of preventive detention

If placement in a psychiatric hospital has been declared disposed of in accordance with section 67d (6) on account of the condition leading to a lack of criminal responsibility or diminished responsibility on which the order was based not existing at the time of that declaration, the court may subsequently order preventive detention where

1. placement in a psychiatric hospital in accordance with section 63 was ordered based on more than one of the offences set forth in section 66 (3) sentence 1 or if the person had either previously been sentenced to imprisonment for a term of at least three years or was placed in a psychiatric hospital on account of having committed one or more such offences prior to the offence leading to placement in a psychiatric hospital in accordance with section 63 and
2. an overall evaluation of the person concerned, the offences committed and that person's development up until the date of the decision indicate that it is highly likely that said person will commit serious crimes resulting in severe emotional trauma or physical injury to the victims.

This also applies where, following a period of placement pursuant to section 63, a sentence of imprisonment imposed at the same time is to be enforced in full or in part.

Section 66c

Organisation of preventive detention and preceding imprisonment

(1) Preventive detention is carried out in institutions which

1. offer a level of support to the detainee, based on a comprehensive treatment examination and of a regularly updated detention plan,
 - a) which is individualised and intensive and suited to incentivising and fostering the detainee's cooperation, in particular psychiatric, psychotherapeutic or socio-therapeutic treatment which is tailored to the detainee's needs, insofar as standardised offers do not appear promising and
 - b) whose aim is to minimise the detainee's dangerousness to the public to a degree that the measure may be suspended on probation or declared disposed of as soon as possible,
2. guarantee that the placement
 - a) burdens the detainee as little as possible, matches the requirements of support under no. 1 and, security interests notwithstanding, is adapted to general conditions of life and
 - b) is carried out in special buildings or wings which are separate from the prison regime, unless the treatment under no. 1 exceptionally requires otherwise and
3. in order to achieve the goal referred to in no. 1 (b),

- a) offer measures for an open detention regime and preparations for the detainee's release, unless compelling objections exist, in particular specific factors indicating a danger that the detainee might abscond or use the measures to commit serious offences and
- b) provide follow-up support, in close cooperation with state or private providers, once the detainee is at liberty.

(2) If the court has, in its judgment, ordered preventive detention (section 66), either reserved (section 66a (3)) or subsequently (section 66b), or has reserved such an order for preventive detention (section 66a (1) and (2)), the offender must, during the term of imprisonment imposed, be offered support within the meaning of subsection (1) no. 1, in particular socio-therapeutic treatment, with the aim of making enforcement of the placement (section 67c (1) sentence 1 no. 1) or its order (section 66a (3)) unnecessary wherever possible.

Section 67 Sequence of enforcement

(1) If placement in an institution in accordance with section 63 and section 64 is ordered in addition to a sentence of imprisonment, the measure is enforced before the sentence of imprisonment.

(2) However, the court is to order that all or part of the sentence be enforced before the measure if the purpose of the measure will thereby be more readily achieved. When making the order for placement in an addiction treatment facility in addition to imprisonment for a term of at least three years, the court is, as a rule, to order that a part of the sentence be enforced before the measure. That part of the sentence is to be calculated in a manner which enables a decision under subsection (5) sentence 1 to be made after the part of the sentence and the measure have been enforced. The court is, as a rule, to further determine that the sentence is to be enforced before the measure if the convicted person is required to leave the country and may be deported from the Federal Republic of Germany and if there is reason to believe that the convicted person's residence within the territorial scope of this statute will be terminated whilst serving the sentence or immediately after the sentence has been served.

(3) The court may subsequently make, modify or set aside an order under subsection (2) sentence 1 or 2 if that is deemed appropriate based on the convicted person's circumstances. The court may also subsequently make the order under subsection (2) sentence 4. If it has made an order in accordance with subsection (2) sentence 4, it then revokes such order if there is reason to believe that the convicted person's residence within the territorial scope of this statute will no longer be terminated whilst serving the sentence or immediately after the sentence has been served.

(4) If the measure is enforced in full or in part before the sentence, the period of enforcement is credited against the sentence up to a maximum of two thirds of the penalty.

(5) If the measure is enforced before the sentence or a remainder of the sentence, the court may suspend enforcement of the remainder of the sentence under the conditions of section 57 (1) sentences 1 and 2 if half of the sentence has been served. If the remainder of the sentence is not suspended, enforcement of the measure continues; the court may, however, order that the sentence be served if this is deemed appropriate based on the convicted person's circumstances.

(6) The court orders that any crediting in accordance with subsection (4) is also to be made in regard to a sentence arising from a separate criminal conviction if its enforcement would mean undue hardship for the convicted person. In particular, consideration is to be given, when taking this decision, to the relationship between the length of the previous deprivation of liberty and the length of the newly imposed sentence, the therapeutic success achieved thus far and the concrete danger the person poses, as well as that person's conduct during enforcement. A measure is, as a rule, not credited against a sentence of the separate criminal conviction where the underlying offence has been committed after the measure was ordered. Subsection (5) sentence 2 applies accordingly.

Section 67a

Transfer to another measure

- (1) If placement in a psychiatric hospital or in an addiction treatment facility has been ordered, the court may subsequently transfer the detained person to the other of those two measures if this would improve the chances of that person's successful social rehabilitation.
- (2) Under the conditions of subsection (1), the court may also subsequently transfer a person subject to preventive detention to one of the measures referred to in subsection (1). Subsequent transfer may be ordered where the conditions of subsection (1) are met and the transfer is indicated for the purposes of carrying out medical or addiction treatment, including for those persons who are still serving a sentence of imprisonment and whose preventive detention has been ordered or reserved.
- (3) The court may modify or set aside a decision taken in accordance with subsections (1) and (2) if it subsequently transpires that this would improve the chances of the detained person's successful social rehabilitation. Further, the court may set aside a decision made in accordance with subsection (2) if it subsequently transpires that enforcing the measures referred to in subsection (1) will not lead to the desired result.
- (4) The length of the terms of placement and the periods of review are determined in accordance with the provisions which apply to an order made in a judgment. In the case under subsection (2) sentence 2, up until enforcement of the measure commences the court is required to carry out a review at regular intervals of no more than one year as to whether the conditions for a decision under subsection (3) sentence 2 are met.

Section 67b

Simultaneous suspension of measure

- (1) If the court orders placement in a psychiatric hospital or in an addiction treatment facility, it simultaneously suspends the measure on probation if special circumstances justify the expectation that the purpose of the measure can also be achieved in this manner. Suspension is not to be ordered if the person still has to serve a sentence of imprisonment which was imposed at the same time as the measure and which has not been suspended on probation.
- (2) The order for suspension automatically leads to the supervision of conduct.

Section 67c

Deferred start of placement

- (1) If a sentence of imprisonment is served prior to a period of placement which has been ordered for the same offence or offences and the review required before the end of the term of imprisonment shows that
1. the purpose of the placement no longer requires its enforcement or
 2. placement in preventive detention would be disproportionate because the offender was not, in an overall evaluation of the course of the sentence of imprisonment served, offered sufficient support within the meaning of section 66c (2) in conjunction with section 66c (1) no. 1,
- then the court suspends the measure on probation; the order for suspension automatically leads to the supervision of conduct. The review under sentence 1 no. 1 is not required if the preventive detention was ordered by the court of first instance less than one year before the end of the term of imprisonment.
- (2) If enforcement of placement has not yet commenced within three years after its order becomes final and if a case under subsection (1) or section 67b does not exist, then the measure may only be enforced if the court so orders. Any period during which the offender was detained in an institution by official order is not taken into account. The court orders enforcement if the purpose of the placement still so requires. If the purpose of the placement has not been achieved yet special circumstances justify the expectation that it may be achieved by suspending enforcement, the court suspends the measure on probation; the order for suspension automatically leads to the supervision of conduct. If the purpose of the measure has been achieved, the court declares it disposed of.

Section 67d Period of placement

(1) The period of placement in an addiction treatment facility may not exceed two years. This term runs from the start of the measure. Where a measure involving deprivation of liberty is enforced before a sentence of imprisonment imposed at the same time, the maximum period is extended by the length of the term of imprisonment to the extent that the time spent in the measure is credited against the sentence.

(2) If no maximum period is provided for or the period has not yet expired, the court suspends the remainder of the measure on probation if it is to be expected that the person subject to the measure will no longer commit any serious unlawful acts if released. The same applies if, after enforcement of preventive detention has begun, the court finds that its further enforcement would be disproportionate because the preventive detainee was not offered sufficient support within the meaning of section 66c (1) no. 1 before a period set by the court not exceeding six months has elapsed; if sufficient support was not offered, the court is to set such a period when reviewing the suspension of enforcement, indicating the measures to be offered. Suspension under sentence 1 or 2 automatically leads to the supervision of conduct.

(3) Where 10 years of preventive detention have been served, the court declares the measure disposed of if there is no danger that the preventive detainee will commit further serious crimes resulting in severe emotional trauma or physical injury to the victims. The order for release automatically leads to the supervision of conduct.

(4) Once the maximum period has expired, the detainee is released. The measure is thus disposed of. Release from detention automatically leads to the supervision of conduct.

(5) The court declares the placement in an addiction treatment facility disposed of where the conditions of section 64 sentence 2 are no longer met. Release from an addiction treatment facility automatically leads to the supervision of conduct.

(6) If, after enforcement of placement in a psychiatric hospital has begun, the court finds that the conditions for the measure no longer exist or that continued enforcement of the measure would be disproportionate, the court declares it disposed of. Once the measure has lasted six years, its continuation is generally no longer proportionate, unless there is a danger that the detainee will, as a result of his or her condition, commit serious unlawful acts causing severe emotional trauma or physical injury to the victims or exposing the victims to the danger of severe physical injury or emotional trauma. After 10 years of detention, subsection (3) sentence 1 applies accordingly. Release from the measure automatically leads to the supervision of conduct. The court waives supervision of conduct if it is to be expected that the person will no longer commit any further offences even without the measure.

Section 67e Review

(1) The court may at any time review whether further enforcement of the measure involving deprivation of liberty is to be suspended on probation or the measure is to be declared disposed of. It is required to perform the review within specified periods.

(2) The specified periods are six months in the case of placement in an addiction treatment facility, one year in the case of placement in a psychiatric hospital, one year in the case of preventive detention, nine months after 10 years of preventive detention.

(3) The court may reduce these periods. It may also set dates within the statutory limits for review before the expiry of which an application for review is inadmissible.

(4) The periods run from the commencement of the detention. If the court denies suspension or disposal, the period commences anew with that decision.

Section 67f Multiple orders

If the court orders placement in an addiction treatment facility, any previous such order is deemed to be disposed of.

Section 67g Revocation of suspended measures

(1) The court revokes the suspension of a measure involving deprivation of liberty if the convicted person

1. commits an unlawful act during the period of supervision of conduct,
2. grossly or persistently breaches directions as referred to in section 68b or
3. persistently evades the supervision and guidance of the probation officer or of the supervisory authority, and as a result the purpose of the measure requires the convicted person's detention.

Sentence 1 no. 1 applies accordingly if the reason for revocation arose in the period between the decision on suspension and the start of supervision of conduct (section 68c (4)).

(2) The court even revokes the suspension of a measure involving deprivation of liberty in accordance with sections 63 and 64 if evidence arises during the period of the supervision of conduct that the convicted person is expected to commit unlawful acts as a result of his or her condition and the purpose of the measure therefore requires the convicted person's detention.

(3) The court further revokes the suspension if circumstances which have come to its attention during the period of the supervision of conduct and which would have led to the suspension being denied show that the purpose of the measure requires the convicted person's detention.

(4) The period of placement before and after the revocation may not, in its totality, exceed the maximum statutory period for the measure.

(5) If the court does not revoke suspension of the placement, it is deemed disposed of upon conclusion of the period of supervision of conduct.

(6) Payments which the convicted person has made in the fulfilment of directions are not to be reimbursed.

Section 67h Limited order for measure to take effect; crisis intervention

(1) During the period of supervision of conduct the court may order that the suspended placement under section 63 or 64 take effect for a duration not exceeding three months if there has been an acute deterioration in the released person's condition or a relapse into addictive behaviour and the measure is necessary in order to avoid a revocation under section 67g. Under the conditions of sentence 1, it may order the renewal of the measure or extend its duration; the maximum duration of the measure may not exceed a total of six months. Section 67g (4) applies accordingly.

(2) The court sets aside the measure before the expiry of the period set under subsection (1) if its purpose has been achieved.

Supervision of conduct

Section 68 Preconditions

(1) If a person has incurred a determinate sentence of imprisonment of at least six months for an offence for which the law specifically provides for the supervision of conduct, the court may order supervision of conduct in addition to the penalty if there is a danger that the person will commit further offences.

(2) The statutory provisions providing for supervision of conduct (section 67b, section 67c, section 67d (2) to (6) and section 68f) remain unaffected.

Section 68a

Supervisory authority, probation service, forensic outpatient service

(1) The convicted person is assigned to a supervisory authority; the court appoints a probation officer to support the convicted person for the period of the supervision of conduct.

(2) The probation officer and the supervisory authority act together to offer the convicted person assistance and support.

(3) The supervisory authority, in consultation with the court and with the support of the probation officer, supervises the convicted person's conduct and compliance with directions issued.

(4) Where there is any disagreement between the supervisory authority and the probation officer as to questions which affect the assistance and support given to the convicted person, it is for the court to resolve the matter.

(5) The court may issue instructions to the supervisory authority and the probation officer in regard to their functions.

(6) Before filing a request to prosecute under section 145a sentence 2, the supervisory authority is to hear the probation officer; subsection (4) does not apply.

(7) Where a direction as referred to in section 68b (2) sentences 2 and 3 has been issued, the forensic outpatient service is to work together with the parties referred to in subsection (2). In all other cases, subsections (3) and (6) concerning the probation officer's status also apply to the forensic outpatient service.

(8) The parties referred to in subsection (1) and the staff of the forensic outpatient service referred to in section 203 (1) nos. 1, 2 and 6 are to disclose third-party secrets to each other which have come to their attention in the course of their activities within the relationship indicated in section 203 or otherwise to the extent that this is necessary to support the convicted person in avoiding the commission of further offences. Moreover, the staff of the forensic outpatient service referred to in section 203 (1) nos. 1, 2 and 6 are required to disclose such secrets to the supervisory authority and the court if, in their opinion,

1. this is necessary for the purpose of monitoring whether the convicted person is complying with a direction as referred to in section 68b (1) sentence 1 no. 11 to report in person at certain intervals or is participating, within the remit of a direction as referred to in section 68b (2) sentences 2 and 3, in treatment,

2. the convicted person's conduct or condition are deemed to necessitate the measures under section 67g, section 67h or section 68c (2) or (3) or

3. if this is necessary to avert a serious and present danger to the life, physical integrity, personal liberty or sexual self-determination of third parties.

In the cases under sentence 1 and sentence 2 nos. 2 and 3, facts within the meaning of section 203 (1) which were disclosed by staff of the forensic outpatient service may only be used for the purposes mentioned therein.

Section 68b

Directions

(1) The court may, for the duration of the supervision of conduct or for a shorter period, direct convicted persons

1. not to leave their domicile or habitual residence or a specified area without the permission of the supervisory authority,
2. not to frequent specific places which may offer them the opportunity or incentive to commit further offences,
3. not to make contact or associate with the injured person or with specific persons or persons from a specific group who may offer them the opportunity or incentive to commit further offences, nor to employ, train or accommodate them,
4. not to engage in specific activities which may in certain circumstances be misused for criminal purposes,
5. not to possess, carry or entrust to another for safekeeping particular objects which may offer them the opportunity or incentive to commit further offences,
6. not to possess or drive motor vehicles or particular types of motor vehicles or other vehicles which may in certain circumstances be misused for criminal purposes,
7. to report at specific times to the supervisory authority, to a specific authority or to the probation officer,
8. to report promptly each change of address or employment to the supervisory authority,
9. to report, in the case of unemployment, to the Federal Employment Agency or to another authorised employment agency,
10. not to consume alcoholic drinks or other intoxicating substances if, based on specific facts, there is reason to believe that their consumption will contribute to the commission of further offences, and to undergo alcohol and drug tests of a non-invasive nature,
11. to present themselves at specific times or at specific intervals to a physician, a psychotherapist or the forensic outpatient service or
12. to carry the technical means for the electronic monitoring of their whereabouts in working order with them at all times and not to tamper with them.

The court is required to precisely specify the prohibited or required conduct in its direction. Notwithstanding sentence 5, a direction under sentence 1 no. 12 is only admissible if

1. the supervision of conduct was triggered by having served in full a sentence of imprisonment or an aggregate sentence of imprisonment of at least three years or on the basis of a measure which was declared disposed of,
2. the sentence or aggregate sentence of imprisonment or the measure involving deprivation of liberty was ordered for one or more offences referred to in section 66 (3) sentence 1,
3. there is a danger that the convicted person may commit further offences under section 66 (3) sentence 1 and
4. the direction appears necessary to prevent the convicted person from committing further offences of the type referred to in section 66 (3) sentence 1 by means of the possibility of using data in accordance with section 463a (4) sentence 2 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in particular for the purposes of monitoring compliance with directions issued in accordance with sentence 1 no. 1 or 2.

The conditions of sentence 3 no. 1 in conjunction with no. 2 are met irrespective of whether the supervision of conduct under section 68e (1) sentence 1 referred to therein has ended. In derogation from sentence 3 no. 1, a sentence of imprisonment or aggregate sentence of imprisonment of two years suffices if these were imposed for one or more offences falling under Division 1 or 7 of the Special Part; the offences referred to in sentence 3 nos. 2 to 4 include the offence under section 129a (5) sentence 2, also in conjunction with section 129b (1).

(2) The court may, for the duration of the supervision of conduct or for a shorter period, issue directions to the convicted person, in particular in relation to education and training, employment, leisure time, getting his or her financial affairs in order or meeting maintenance obligations. The court may, in particular, direct the convicted person to receive psychiatric, psychotherapeutic or socio-therapeutic care and treatment (therapy direction). The care or treatment may be provided by a forensic outpatient service. Section 56c (3) applies accordingly, including to the direction in respect of invasive alcohol or drug tests.

(3) The directions may not make unreasonable demands in respect of the convicted person's lifestyle.

(4) If, upon a period of supervision of conduct beginning, an existing supervision of conduct is deemed ended under the terms of section 68e (1) sentence 1 no. 3, the court order must include the directions issued in the context of the previous supervision of conduct.

(5) To the extent that the support given to a convicted person in the cases under subsection (1) no. 11 or treatment in accordance with subsection (2) is not provided by a forensic outpatient service, section 68a (8) applies accordingly.

Section 68c

Period of supervision of conduct

(1) The period of supervision of conduct is no less than two years and no more than five years. The court may reduce the maximum period.

(2) The court may make an order for the supervision of conduct for an indeterminate period exceeding the maximum period under subsection (1) sentence 1 if the convicted person

1. does not consent to a direction under section 56c (3) no. 1 or
2. does not comply with a direction to undergo medical or addiction treatment or a therapy direction, and if there is reason to believe that there is a danger to the general public on account of that person committing further serious crimes. If, in the cases under sentence 1 no. 1, the convicted person subsequently consents, the court determines the further period of the supervision of conduct. Otherwise, section 68e (3) applies.

(3) The court may extend the supervision of conduct for an indeterminate period exceeding the maximum in subsection (1) sentence 1 if

1. there is reason to believe, in the case of a suspended order for placement in a psychiatric hospital under section 67d (2), that the convicted person is otherwise about to lapse into a condition as indicated in section 20 or 21 which will result in a danger to the general public on account of that person committing further serious unlawful acts or
2. there is reason to believe, on account of non-compliance with directions under section 68b (1) or (2) or other specific circumstances, that there is a danger to the general public on account of that person committing further serious crimes and
 - a) the convicted person has been sentenced to a single or aggregate sentence of imprisonment of at least two years or has been placed in a psychiatric hospital or in an addiction treatment facility for offences under section 181b or
 - b) supervision of conduct under the conditions of section 68b (1) sentence 3 no. 1 was triggered and the single or aggregate sentence of imprisonment or the placement was imposed or ordered for one or more serious criminal offences against life, physical integrity, personal liberty or under sections 250 and 251, also in conjunction with section 252 or 255.

Section 68b (1) sentence 4 applies accordingly to the termination of supervision of conduct. (4) In the cases under section 68b (1), supervision of conduct commences once the order becomes final, in the cases under section 67b (2), section 67c (1) sentence 1 and (2) sentence 4 and under section 67d (2) sentence 3, it commences when the order for suspension becomes final or at a later date to be specified by the court. Any time during which the person was at large, was in hiding or was detained in an institution by official order is not credited against its duration.

Section 68d

Subsequent decisions; review period

- (1) The court may subsequently make, modify or set aside decisions pursuant to section 68a (1) and (5), section 68b, section 68c (1) sentence 2 and (2) and (3).
- (2) In the case of a direction as defined in section 68b (1) sentence 1 no. 12, the court is required to review, before two years have elapsed, whether it is to be set aside. Section 67e (3) and (4) applies accordingly.

Section 68e

Termination or stay of supervision

(1) Unless the order for supervision of conduct is indeterminate or in the case of a suspension of a measure involving deprivation of liberty (sections 67b (2), section 67c (1) sentence 1 and (2) sentence 4, section 67d (2) sentence 3), the supervision of conduct ends

1. upon commencement of enforcement of a measure involving deprivation of liberty,
2. upon commencement of enforcement of a sentence of imprisonment in addition to which a measure involving deprivation of liberty has been ordered,
3. upon commencement of a new order for supervision of conduct.

In all other cases, the supervision of conduct is stayed for the period in which a person is serving a sentence of imprisonment or a measure involving deprivation of liberty. The court sets aside any supervision of conduct which is triggered by the suspension of a measure involving deprivation of liberty if it is no longer necessary in the light of the existence of one of the circumstances indicated in sentence 1 nos. 1 to 3. If a new order for supervision of conduct is made in addition to an existing indeterminate order for supervision of conduct or in the case of the suspension of a measure involving deprivation of liberty, the court is to order that the new measure be dropped if it is not necessary in view of the existing one.

(2) The court terminates the supervision of conduct if it is to be expected that the convicted person will no longer commit further offences without the measure. The termination may not be ordered before the expiry of the statutory minimum period. The court may set periods not exceeding six months before the expiry of which an application for the termination of supervision of conduct is inadmissible.

(3) In the case of indeterminate supervision of conduct, the court is required,

1. in the cases under section 68c (2) sentence 1, no later than after the expiry of the maximum period under section 68c (1) sentence 1,
2. in the cases under section 68c (3), before the expiry of two years, to review whether a decision under subsection (2) sentence 1 is necessary. If the court refuses to set aside the supervision of conduct, it is required to once more review the setting aside of the supervision of conduct before the expiry of a further two years.

Section 68f

Supervision of conduct after serving full sentence

- (1) If a single or aggregate sentence of imprisonment of at least two years for intentional offences or at least one year for one of the offences under section 181b has been fully served, supervision of conduct commences upon the convicted person's release from prison. This does not apply where a measure of reform and prevention involving deprivation of liberty is to be enforced immediately after the sentence has been served.
- (2) The court may waive the supervision of conduct if it is to be expected that the convicted person will no longer commit further offences without the measure.

Section 68g

Supervision of conduct and suspension on probation

- (1) If an order has been made for the suspension of a sentence or the suspension of the remainder of a sentence, or disqualification from exercising a profession has been suspended on probation and if the convicted person is at the same time under supervision of conduct for the same or another offence, then only sections 68a and 68b apply in relation to the supervision of conduct and the issuing of directions. Supervision of conduct does not end before the expiry of any probation period.
- (2) If an order has been made for suspension on probation and for the supervision of conduct on the basis of the same offence, the court may, however, determine that the supervision of conduct be stayed until the end of any probation period. In this case, the probation period is not credited against the period of supervision of conduct.
- (3) If, after the end of the probation period, the sentence or the remainder thereof is remitted or the disqualification from exercising a profession is declared disposed of, then the order made for the supervision of conduct on the basis of the same offence also ends. This does not apply if the supervision of conduct is indeterminate (section 68c (2) sentence 1 or (3)).

Disqualification from driving

Section 69

Disqualification from driving

- (1) Whoever has been convicted of an unlawful act which they committed in connection with the driving of a motor vehicle or in breach of the duties of the driver of a motor vehicle, or whoever has not been convicted merely because their lack of criminal responsibility has been proved or cannot be ruled out, is disqualified from driving by the court if the act shows that they are unfit to drive a motor vehicle. A further examination pursuant to section 62 is not required.
- (2) If, in the cases under subsection (1), the unlawful act is a less serious criminal offence of

1. endangering road traffic (section 315c),
- 1a. illegal motor racing (section 315d),
2. driving under the influence of drink or drugs (section 316),
3. leaving the scene of an accident without cause (section 142) although the offender knows or culpably does not know that a person was killed, seriously injured or significant damage to the property of another was caused in the accident or
4. intoxication (section 323a) if the offence relates to one of the offences referred to in nos. 1 to 3, then the offender is typically to be deemed unfit to drive motor vehicles.

- (3) The offender's driving licence lapses upon the judgment becoming final. A driving licence issued by a German authority is confiscated in the judgment.

Section 69a

Period of disqualification

- (1) If the court disqualifies a driving licence, it simultaneously determines that the driving licence is not to be reinstated for a period of between six months and five years (period of disqualification). The court may order that the period of disqualification be permanent if it is to be expected that the statutory maximum period will not suffice to avert the danger which the offender poses. If the offender has no driving licence, only a period of disqualification is ordered.

(2) The court may exclude particular types of motor vehicles from the period of disqualification if special circumstances justify the assumption that the purpose of the measure will not be jeopardised thereby.

(3) The minimum period of disqualification is one year if a period of disqualification was already ordered against the offender in the three years prior to the offence.

(4) If the offender's driving licence was provisionally disqualified on account of the offence (section 111a of the Code of Criminal Procedure), the length of the provisional disqualification is deducted from the minimum period of the disqualification. In no case, however, may the period of disqualification be less than three months.

(5) The period of disqualification commences upon the judgment becoming final. The time of a provisional disqualification ordered on account of the offence is credited against the period of the disqualification to the extent it has run following the date of pronouncement of the judgment in those proceedings in which the findings of fact on which the measure was based were last examined.

(6) For the purposes of subsections (4) and (5), the confiscation, securing or seizure of a driving licence (section 94 of the Code of Criminal Procedure) is equivalent to provisional disqualification from driving.

(7) If there is reason to believe that the offender is no longer unfit to drive motor vehicles, the court may prematurely terminate the period of disqualification. This termination may not be ordered unless the disqualification has been in effect for three months, or one year in the cases under subsection (3); subsection (5) sentence 2 and subsection (6) apply accordingly.

Section 69b

Effect of disqualification of foreign licence

(1) If the offender is permitted to drive motor vehicles in Germany on the basis of a licence granted abroad without a driving licence having been issued by a German authority, the disqualification order has the effect of a loss of the right to make use of the licence in Germany. The right to drive motor vehicles in Germany lapses upon the decision becoming final. For the duration of the period of disqualification neither a German licence may be issued nor the right to make use of the foreign licence be reinstated.

(2) If the foreign driving licence was issued by an authority of a Member State of the European Union or another Contracting Party to the Agreement on the European Economic Area and the holder is ordinarily resident in Germany, the driving licence is confiscated in the judgment and sent back to the issuing authority. In all other cases, the loss of the right to drive and the period of disqualification is endorsed on the foreign driving licence.

Disqualification from exercising profession

Section 70

Order for disqualification from exercising profession

(1) Persons who have been convicted of an unlawful act which they committed in abuse of their profession or trade or in gross breach of the attendant duties, or who have not been convicted merely because their lack of criminal responsibility was proved or cannot be ruled out, may be issued with an order disqualifying them from exercising that profession, branch of profession, trade or branch of trade for a period of between one year and five years if an overall evaluation of the offender and the offence shows that by further exercising the profession, branch of profession, trade or branch of trade there is a danger that they will commit serious unlawful acts of the type indicated. The disqualification order may be made in perpetuity if there is reason to believe that the statutory maximum period will not suffice to avert the danger posed by the offender.

(2) Where the offender has been provisionally disqualified from exercising a profession, branch of profession, trade or branch of trade (section 132a of the Code of Criminal Procedure), the length of the provisional disqualification is deducted from the minimum period of the disqualification. In no case, however, may the period of disqualification be less than three months.

(3) For the duration of the disqualification, offenders may neither exercise the profession, branch of profession, trade or branch of trade on behalf of another nor have a person who is subject to their instructions engage in it on their behalf.

(4) The disqualification commences upon the judgment becoming final. Any period of disqualification from exercising a profession imposed on account of the act is credited against the disqualification period to the extent it has run following the date of pronouncement of the judgment in those proceedings in which the findings of fact on which the measure was based were last examined. Any period during which the offender was detained in an institution by official order is not taken into account.

Section 70a

Suspension of disqualification from exercising profession

(1) If, after a disqualification order has been made, there is reason to believe that there is no longer a danger that the offender will commit serious unlawful acts of the type indicated in section 70 (1), the court may suspend the order for a probation period.

(2) The order may not be made before the expiry of one year. Any time of a provisional disqualification is credited against the period of disqualification referred to in section 70 (4) sentence 2. Any period during which the offender was detained in an institution by official order is not taken into account.

(3) If the disqualification order is suspended, section 56a and sections 56c to 56e apply accordingly. The probation period is extended by any time during which a sentence of imprisonment or a measure involving deprivation of liberty imposed on or ordered against the convicted person on account of the offence was served.

Section 70b

Revocation of suspension and disposal of disqualification from exercising profession

(1) The court revokes the suspension of disqualification from exercising a profession in the case of convicted persons who

1. commit an unlawful act in the abuse of their profession or trade or in gross breach of the attendant duties during the probation period,
2. grossly or persistently fail to comply with a direction or
3. persistently evade the supervision and guidance of their probation officer, and there is reason to believe that the purpose of the disqualification requires its enforcement.

(2) The court also revokes the suspension if evidence which has come to its attention during the probation period and which would have led to the suspension being denied shows that the purpose of the measure requires the continued enforcement of the disqualification.

(3) Any period of suspension of the disqualification from exercising a profession is not credited against the period of disqualification.

(4) Payments which a convicted person has made in the fulfilment of directions or assurances are not to be reimbursed.

(5) After the probation period has expired, the court declares the disqualification disposed of.

Common provisions

Section 71

Independent orders

- (1) The court may make an independent order for placement in a psychiatric hospital or in an addiction treatment facility if criminal proceedings are impracticable because the offender lacks criminal responsibility or is unfit to stand trial.
- (2) The same applies to disqualification from driving and disqualification from exercising a profession.

Section 72

Joinder of measures

- (1) If the conditions for more than one measure are met but the intended purpose can be achieved through individual orders from amongst their number, only the individual measures are to be ordered. Priority amongst a number of suitable measures is to be given to those which impose the least burden on the offender.
- (2) In all other cases, measures are to be ordered concurrently, unless otherwise provided by law.
- (3) If several measures involving deprivation of liberty are imposed, the court determines the sequence of their enforcement. Before a measure has been fully enforced, the court orders enforcement of the next if its purpose still necessitates the placement. Section 67c (2) sentences 4 and 5 applies.

Title 7

Confiscation

Section 73

Confiscation of proceeds of crime from offenders and participants

- (1) If the offender or participant has obtained anything by or for an unlawful act, the court orders the confiscation of that which was obtained.
- (2) If the offender or participant has derived any benefits from the proceeds, the court also orders the confiscation of the benefits.
- (3) The court may also order confiscation of objects which the offender or participant has obtained
 1. by way of sale of the object obtained or as compensation for its destruction, damage or confiscation or
 2. on the basis of a right obtained.

Section 73a

Extended confiscation of proceeds of crime from offenders and participants

- (1) If an unlawful act has been committed, the court orders the confiscation of objects belonging to the offender or participant even in those cases in which the objects were obtained by other unlawful acts or for such acts.
- (2) If the offender or participant participated in some other unlawful act prior to the confiscation having been ordered in accordance with subsection (1) and if a new decision is to be taken regarding the confiscation of objects belonging to the offender or participant, the court takes account of the order which has already been issued.

Section 73b

Confiscation of proceeds of crime from other persons

- (1) The order of confiscation referred to in sections 73 and 73a is made against another person who is not the offender or participant if
 1. that person has obtained something by committing the offence and the offender or participant acted on said person's behalf,
 2. the object so obtained
 - a) was transferred to that person free of charge or without legal reason or

- b) was transferred to that person and said person recognised, or ought to have recognised, that the object obtained was derived from an unlawful act or
- 3. the object so obtained
 - a) has devolved to that person in the capacity as heir or
 - b) has been transferred to that person in the capacity as a party entitled to the compulsory portion in an estate or as a beneficiary under a will.

Sentence 1 nos. 2 and 3 has no application if the object obtained was previously transferred, for a fee and on the basis of a legal reason, to a third party who did not recognise or did not have reason to recognise that the object obtained was derived from an unlawful act.

(2) If, subject to the conditions of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 2 or 3, the other party obtains an object which is equivalent in value to the object obtained or benefits which have been derived from such object, the court orders their confiscation as well.

(3) Subject to the conditions of subsection (1) sentence 1 no. 2 or 3, the court may also order the confiscation of whatever was obtained

- 1. by way of sale of the object obtained or as compensation for its destruction, damage or confiscation or
- 2. on the basis of a right obtained.

Section 73c

Confiscation of value of proceeds of crime

If the confiscation of a particular object is impossible due to the nature of that which was obtained or for some other reason or because confiscation of a surrogate object has not been ordered as required by section 73 (3) or section 73b (3), the court orders the confiscation of a sum of money equal to the value of that which was obtained. The court also makes such an order in addition to confiscating an object to the extent that its value falls short of the value of that which was originally obtained.

Section 73d

Calculation of value of obtained object; estimate

(1) When calculating the value of an object obtained, any expenditure on the part of the offender, participant or the other person is to be deducted. An amount spent or used in the commission or preparation of the unlawful act is not deducted, however, unless it was used to comply with an obligation against the injured party.

(2) The scope and value of that which was obtained and the amount which is to be deducted may be estimated.

Section 73e

Preclusion of confiscation of proceeds of crime or of equivalent sum of money

(1) Confiscation under the terms of sections 73 to 73c is precluded inasmuch as the injured party's claim to the return of the object obtained or compensation of the sum of money equal to the value of the object obtained to which the injured party is entitled as a consequence of the offence has expired. This does not apply to claims which have lapsed under the statute of limitations.

(2) In the cases under section 73b, also in conjunction with section 73c, confiscation is also precluded inasmuch as the value of the object obtained no longer forms part of the assets of the person affected at the time the order is issued, unless the person affected was aware or recklessly unaware at the time at which unjust enrichment ceased to be given of the circumstances which otherwise would have allowed the confiscation to be ordered against the offender or participant.

Section 74

Confiscation of products of crime, means of crime or objects of crime from offenders and participants

(1) Objects arising from the commission of an intentional offence (products of crime) or used in its commission or preparation or designated for such commission or preparation (means of crime) may be confiscated.

(2) Objects relating to an offence (objects of crime) are subject to confiscation pursuant to specific provisions.

(3) The confiscation is admissible only if, at the time of the decision, the offender or participant owns the object or is entitled to it. This also applies to confiscation which is prescribed or available under a specific provision beyond subsection (1).

Section 74a

Confiscation of products of crime, means of crime or objects of crime from other persons

Where a statute refers to this provision, objects may also be confiscated in derogation from section 74 (3) if, at the time of the decision, the person who owns them or has a right to them

1. contributed at least recklessly to the objects being used as the means of crime or if they were the object of crime or

2. acquired the objects in a reprehensible manner in the full knowledge of the circumstances which would have allowed for their confiscation.

Section 74b

Confiscation of dangerous objects

(1) If, due to their nature and the circumstances, objects pose a danger to the general public or there is a danger that they will be used for the commission of unlawful acts, they may be confiscated even if

1. the offender or participant acted without guilt or

2. a person other than the offender or participant owns or is entitled to the object.

(2) In the cases under subsection (1) no. 2, the third party is adequately compensated in money from the Treasury, having regard to the fair market value of the confiscated object. The same applies if the confiscated object was encumbered by another's right which was extinguished or prejudiced by the decision.

(3) Compensation is not granted if

1. the person who has a right to compensation under subsection (2)

a) contributed at least recklessly to the object being used as a means of crime or it was the object of crime or

b) acquired the object or the right in the object in a reprehensible manner in the full knowledge of the circumstances which would have allowed for its confiscation, or

2. it would be lawful, under the circumstances which justified the confiscation, to permanently confiscate the object or the right in the object from the person entitled to compensation without granting compensation, on the basis of provisions outside of the criminal law.

Compensation may, however, be granted in derogation from sentence 1 if it would cause undue hardship to deny it.

Section 74c

Confiscation of value of products of crime, means and resources used, and objects of crime from offenders and participants

(1) If it is impossible to confiscate a particular object because the offender or participant has sold or used up the object or frustrated its confiscation in some other way, the court may order the confiscation of an amount of money from the offender or participant which is equivalent to the value of the object.

(2) The court may also issue such an order in addition to or instead of the confiscation of an object if the offender or participant has encumbered said object, prior to the decision as to the confiscation having been handed down, with the right of a third party, the expiry of which cannot be ordered or cannot be ordered without compensation being made (section 74b (2) and (3) and section 75 (2)). If the court issues such an order in addition to the confiscation, the amount of the equivalent sum of money is determined based on the value of the encumbrance on the object.

(3) The value of the object and of the encumbrance may be estimated.

Section 74d

Confiscation of materialised content and rendering unusable

(1) Materialised content (section 11 (3)) the intentional dissemination of which would fulfil the elements of a criminal provision is confiscated if the content was disseminated through an unlawful act or was intended for such dissemination. At the same time, the equipment used for or intended for the production of the materialised content which was used as a template for the reproduction or was intended as such is to be rendered unusable.

(2) The confiscation extends only to that materialised content which is in the possession of the persons involved in its dissemination or preparation or which has been put on display in a public place or, if it was sent for dissemination, has not yet been distributed to the recipient.

(3) Subsection (1) applies accordingly to materialised content (section 11 (3)) the intentional dissemination of which would fulfil the elements of a criminal provision only if additional facts and circumstances apply. However, confiscation and rendering unusable is only ordered if

1. the materialised content and the equipment indicated in subsection (1) sentence 2 are in the possession of the offender, participant or another on whose behalf the offender or participant acted, or they are intended by these persons for dissemination and

2. the measures are necessary to prevent unlawful dissemination by the persons referred to in no. 1.

(4) Dissemination within the meaning of subsections (1) to (3) also means making content (section 11 (3)) available to the public.

(5) If, at the time of the decision on confiscation or rendering unusable becoming final, a third party other than the offender or participant had ownership of the property or the object was encumbered by a third party's right which was extinguished or prejudiced by the decision, the third party is to be adequately compensated in money from the Treasury, having regard to the fair market value. Section 74b (3) applies accordingly.

Section 74e

Special provision applicable to organs and representatives

Whoever commits an act

1. in the capacity as an organ authorised to represent a legal entity or as a member of such an organ,

2. in the capacity as a director of an association lacking independent legal capacity or as a member of the board of directors of such an association,

3. in the capacity as a partner authorised to represent a partnership with independent legal capacity,

4. in the capacity as a general agent (Generalbevollmächtigter) or, in a management position, with general power of representation (Prokurist) or with commercial power of attorney (Handlungsbevollmächtigter) of a legal entity or of one of the associations referred to in nos. 2 or 3 or

5. as another person acting in a responsible capacity for the management of the business or enterprise of a legal entity or association referred to in no. 2 or 3, including oversight of the management of the business or other exercise of controlling powers in a senior management position, which in relation to them and under the other conditions of sections 74 to 74c would allow the confiscation of an object or of its equivalent value or justify the denial of compensation, has this act attributed and these provisions applied to the person or entity represented. Section 14 (3) applies accordingly.

Section 74f

Principle of proportionality

(1) If confiscation is not prescribed, it may not be ordered in the cases under sections 74 and 74a if it would be disproportionate to the act committed and the blameworthiness of the person affected by the confiscation. In the cases under sections 74 to 74b and 74d, the court reserves the confiscation if its purpose can also be attained by means of a less incisive measure. Consideration is, in particular, to be given to instructions

1. to render the objects unusable,
2. to remove particular fittings or distinguishing marks from or to modify the objects by other means or
3. to dispose of the objects in a specific manner.

If the instructions are complied with, the reservation of the confiscation is revoked; otherwise, the court subsequently orders the confiscation. If confiscation is not otherwise prescribed, it may be limited to a part of the objects.

(2) In cases of rendering unusable under the terms of section 74d (1) sentence 2 and (3), subsection (1) sentences 2 and 3 applies accordingly.

Section 75

Effects of confiscation

(1) If confiscation of an object is ordered, ownership of the property or the right devolves to the state once the order becomes final if the object

1. belongs to the person affected by the order at that time or if the person affected is entitled to the object at that time or
2. belongs to some other person or if some other person is entitled to it, and that person has granted it for the offence or for other purposes whilst being aware of the circumstances of the offence.

In all other cases, ownership of the property or the right devolves to the state once six months have elapsed after notice has been given of the order of confiscation having become final, unless the person who owns or is entitled to the object has previously filed this right with the enforcing authority.

(2) In all other respects, the rights of third parties in the object remain. In the cases under section 74b, however, the court orders the expiry of these rights. In the cases under sections 74 and 74a, the court may order the expiry of the right of a third party if that third party

1. has contributed at least recklessly to the object being used as a means of crime or to its being the object of crime or
2. has acquired the right in the object in a reprehensible manner whilst being aware of the circumstances giving rise to the confiscation.

(3) Up until such time as ownership of the property or the right is transferred, the order of confiscation or the order to reserve confiscation has the effect of a prohibition of disposal within the meaning of section 136 of the Civil Code (Bürgerliches Gesetzbuch).

(4) In the cases under section 111d (1) sentence 2 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, section 91 of the Insolvency Code (Insolvenzordnung) does not apply.

Section 76

Subsequent order for confiscation of equivalent sum of money

If an order for the confiscation of an object is inadequate or unenforceable on account of one of the conditions of section 73c or 74c having arisen or becoming known after the order was made, the court may subsequently order confiscation of the equivalent sum of money.

Section 76a

Independent confiscation

(1) If it is impossible to prosecute or convict a specific person for a criminal offence, the court independently orders that the object be confiscated or rendered unusable, provided that, in all other respects, the conditions under which the measure is prescribed by law are met. If confiscation is permissible, the court may independently order it subject to the conditions of sentence 1. Confiscation is not ordered if there is no request to prosecute, authorisation to prosecute or request to prosecute from a foreign state, or if a decision with regard to said confiscation has already been taken and become final.

(2) Under the conditions of sections 73, 73b and 73c, it is even permissible for the court to independently order the confiscation of the proceeds of crime and to independently confiscate the value of the proceeds of crime in those cases in which the prosecution of the offence has become barred by the statute of limitations. Under the conditions of sections 74b and 74d, the same applies to instances in which the court independently orders confiscation of a dangerous object, confiscation of materialised content or rendering unusable.

(3) Subsection (1) is also to be applied if the court dispenses with imposing a penalty or if the proceedings are terminated based on a legal provision which allows this to be done at the discretion of the public prosecution office or of the court, or as they may decide by mutual consent.

(4) An object seized on suspicion that one of the offences referred to in sentence 3 has been committed, and any uses made thereof, are, as a rule, to be separately confiscated even in those cases in which the object derives from an unlawful act and it is impossible to prosecute or convict the person affected by the confiscation for the underlying offence. If the confiscation of an object is ordered, ownership of the property or the right to it devolves to the state once the order becomes final; section 75 (3) applies accordingly. Offences for the purposes of sentence 1 are

1. under this Code:
 - a) preparing a serious violent offence endangering the state under section 89a and financing terrorism under section 89c (1) to (4),
 - b) forming criminal organisations under section 129 (1) and forming terrorist organisations under section 129a (1), (2), (4) and (5), in each case also in conjunction with section 129b (1),
 - c) pimping under section 181a (1), also in conjunction with (3),
 - d) dissemination, procurement and possession of child pornographic content in the cases under section 184b (2),
 - e) human trafficking, forced prostitution and forced labour on a commercial basis and by a gang under sections 232 to 232b as well as human trafficking organised by a gang for the purpose of exploitation of labour and exploitation involving deprivation of liberty under sections 233 and 233a,

- f) money laundering under section 261 (1) and (2);
- 2. under the Fiscal Code (Abgabenordnung):
 - a) tax evasion subject to the conditions of section 370 (3) no. 5,
 - b) smuggling on a commercial basis, with the use of violence or as a gang under section 373,
 - c) receiving, holding or selling goods obtained by tax evasion in the case under section 374 (2);
- 3. under the Asylum Act (Asylgesetz):
 - a) incitement to submit fraudulent applications for asylum under section 84 (3),
 - b) incitement, on a commercial basis or by a gang, to submit fraudulent applications for asylum under section 84a;
- 4. under the Residence Act (Aufenthaltsgesetz):
 - a) smuggling of foreigners into the federal territory under section 96 (2),
 - b) smuggling of foreigners into the federal territory resulting in death as well as smuggling on a commercial basis and by a gang under section 97;
- 5. under the Foreign Trade and Payments Act (Außenwirtschaftsgesetz):
intentional offences under sections 17 and 18;
- 6. under the Narcotics Act:
 - a) offences as defined by a provision included by reference in section 29 (3) sentence 2 no. 1, subject to the conditions set out therein,
 - b) offences under section 29a, section 30 (1) nos. 1, 2 and 4 as well as sections 30a and 30b;
- 7. under the War Weapons Control Act (Gesetz über die Kontrolle von Kriegswaffen):
 - a) offences under section 19 (1) to (3) and section 20 (1) and (2) as well as section 20a (1) to (3), in each case also in conjunction with section 21,
 - b) offences under section 22a (1) to (3);
- 8. under the Weapons Act (Waffengesetz):
 - a) offences under section 51 (1) to (3),
 - b) offences under section 52 (1) no. 1 and no. 2 (c) and (d) as well as (5) and (6).

Section 76b

Limitation on confiscation of proceeds of crime and value of proceeds of crime

(1) The limitation period for the extended and the independent confiscation of the proceeds of crime or the value of the proceeds of crime in accordance with sections 73a and 76a is 30 years. The limitation period commences upon completion of the unlawful act through which the offender or participant has obtained something within the meaning of section 73b. Sections 78b and 78c apply accordingly.

(2) In the cases under section 78 (2) and section 5 of the Code of Crimes against International Law, the extended and the independent confiscation of the proceeds of crime or the value of the proceeds of crime under sections 73a and 76a are not subject to the statute of limitations.

Division 4

Request to prosecute, authorisation to prosecute, request to prosecute by foreign state

Section 77

Persons entitled to file request

- (1) If an offence can be prosecuted only upon request, the victim may file the request, unless otherwise provided by law.
- (2) If the victim dies, the right to file a request, if so provided by law, passes to the victim's spouse, life partner and children. If the victim leaves neither a spouse, life partner nor children or if the victim died before the expiry of the time limit for filing the request, the right to file the request passes to the victim's parents and, if they have died before the expiry of the time limit for filing the request, to the victim's siblings and grandchildren. If a relative participated in the offence or the relationship has ceased to exist, that relative is excluded from the list of those to whom the right to file the request may pass. The right to file the request does not pass if prosecution contravenes the victim's professed will.
- (3) If the person entitled to file a request lacks legal capacity or has only limited legal capacity, the statutory representative in respect of the personal affairs of and the person responsible for the care of that person is entitled to file the request.
- (4) If more than one person is entitled to file a request, each may file a request independently.

Section 77a

Request by superior

- (1) If the offence has been committed by or against a public official, a person entrusted with special public service functions or a soldier in the Federal Armed Forces and it may be prosecuted upon request by the person concerned's superior in the public service, then the superior under whom the person concerned was serving at the time of the act is entitled to file the request.
- (2) In the case of professional judges, the person exercising disciplinary supervision over the judge is entitled to file the request in place of the superior in the public service. In the case of soldiers, the superior in the public service is the disciplinary superior officer.
- (3) In the case of a public official or a person entrusted with special public service functions who does not or did not have a superior in the public service, the authority for which the public official or entrusted person acted may file the request. If the public official or the entrusted person is the head of this authority, the state supervisory authority is entitled to file the request.
- (4) In the case of members of the Federal Government, the Federal Government is entitled to file the request, in the case of members of a Land government, the Land government.

Section 77b

Time limit

- (1) An offence which may be prosecuted only upon request is not prosecuted if the person entitled to file the request to prosecute fails to do so before the expiry of a three-month period. If the end of the period falls on a Sunday, a general public holiday or a Saturday, then the period ends upon the expiry of the next working day.
- (2) The period commences upon the expiry of the day on which the entitled person gains knowledge of the offence and of the identity of the offender. When it comes to a request filed by the statutory representative or the person having the duty of care and custody of the person, that person's own knowledge is decisive.
- (3) If more than one person is entitled to file a request or more than one person participated in the offence, the period runs separately for and against each person.

(4) If the right to file a request has passed to relatives as a result of the victim's death, the period ends no sooner than three months and no later than six months after the victim's death.

(5) Where a reconciliation board has received an application to conduct an attempt at reconciliation in accordance with section 380 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the running of the period is stayed until such time as the certificate referred to in section 380 (1) sentence 3 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has been issued.

Section 77c Reciprocal offences

If, in the case of offences committed reciprocally which may be prosecuted only upon request, one entitled person has filed a request to prosecute the other, the other person's right to file a request lapses if it is not exercised before the defendant has finished having the last word in the matter before the court of first instance. Such a request may even be filed although the period available for filing has already expired.

Section 77d Withdrawal of request

(1) The request may be withdrawn. The withdrawal may be declared before the final conclusion of the proceedings. A withdrawn request cannot be filed again.

(2) If the victim or, in the case of the victim's death, the person entitled dies after filing the request, the victim's spouse, life partner, children, parents, siblings or grandchildren may withdraw the request in the order of precedence indicated in section 77 (2). Several relatives of equal precedence may only exercise the right jointly. Whoever participated in the offence may not withdraw the complaint.

Section 77e Authorisation and request by foreign state

If the offence can be prosecuted only upon authorisation or upon a request to prosecute by a foreign state, sections 77 and 77d apply accordingly.

Division 5 Limitation period

Title 1 Limitation on prosecution

Section 78 Limitation period

(1) The imposition of a penalty and the ordering of measures (section 11 (1) no. 8) are ruled out following expiry of the limitation period. Section 76a (2) remains unaffected.

(2) Serious criminal offences under section 211 (murder under specific aggravating circumstances) are not subject to the statute of limitations.

(3) Where prosecution is subject to the statute of limitations, the limitation period is

1. 30 years in the case of offences which are punishable by imprisonment for life,
2. 20 years in the case of offences which are punishable by a maximum sentence of imprisonment of more than 10 years,
3. 10 years in the case of offences which are punishable by a maximum sentence of imprisonment of more than five years but no more than 10 years,
4. five years in the case of offences which are punishable by a maximum sentence of imprisonment of more than one year but no more than five years,
5. three years in the case of other offences.

(4) The period is determined in accordance with the penalty threatened under the law which defines the elements of the offence realised, irrespective of aggravating or mitigating circumstances provided for in the provisions of the General Part or of aggravated or less serious cases under the Special Part.

Section 78a Commencement

The limitation period begins to run as soon as the offence is completed. If a result constituting an element of the offence occurs later, the limitation period begins to run as of that time.

Section 78b Stay of limitation

(1) The limitation period is stayed

1. until the victim of an offence under sections 174 to 174c, 176 to 178, section 182, section 184 (1) sentence 1 no. 3, also in conjunction with (2), sections 225, 226a and 237 has reached the age of 30,
2. as long as the prosecution may, by law, not be commenced or continued; this does not apply if the only reason why the offence cannot be prosecuted is due to the absence of a request or authorisation to prosecute or a request to prosecute by a foreign state.

(2) If prosecution is not feasible because the offender is a Member of the Bundestag or of a legislative body of one of the Länder, the stay of the limitation period only commences upon expiry of the day on which

1. the public prosecution office or a police authority or police officer gains knowledge of the offence and of the offender's identity or
2. an offence is reported or a request to prosecute is filed against the offender (section 158 of the Code of Criminal Procedure).

(3) If a judgment has been delivered in the proceedings at first instance before the expiry of the limitation period, the limitation period does not expire before the time when the proceedings have been finally concluded.

(4) Where provision is made for an aggregate sentence of imprisonment of more than five years in especially serious cases and if the main proceedings have been opened before the regional court, the statute of limitations is stayed in the cases under section 78 (3) no. 4 from the time of the opening of the main proceedings, but no longer than for a period of five years; subsection (3) remains unaffected.

(5) If the offender is staying abroad and if the competent authority makes a formal request for extradition to that state, the limitation period is stayed as of the time the request is served on the foreign state

1. until the offender is surrendered to the German authorities,
2. until the offender leaves the territory of the requested foreign state by other means,
3. until the foreign state's denial of the request is served on the German authorities or
4. until the request is withdrawn.

If the date of service of the request on the foreign state cannot be ascertained, the request is deemed to have been served one month after having been sent or handed over to the foreign state, unless the requesting authority gains knowledge of the fact that the foreign state did not in fact receive the request or only at a later point in time. Sentence 1 does not apply to requests for extradition for which, in the requested state, a limitation period similar to section 83c of the Act on International Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters (Gesetz über die internationale Rechtshilfe in Strafsachen) exists, either based on the Council Framework Decision of 13 June 2002 on the European arrest warrant and the surrender procedures between Member States (OJ L 190, 18.7.2002, p. 1) or based on an international agreement. (6) In the cases under section 78 (3) nos. 1 to 3, the limitation period is stayed from the time of the handing over of a person to the International Criminal Court or the executing state until that person's return to the German authorities or release from the International Criminal Court or the executing state.

Section 78c Interruption

(1) The limitation period is interrupted by

1. the first examination of the accused, notice that a preliminary investigation has been initiated against the accused, or the order for such examination or notice of such examination,
2. any judicial examination of the accused or the order for a judicial examination of the accused,
3. any commissioning of an expert by the judge or public prosecutor if the accused has previously been examined or has been given notice of the launch of a preliminary investigation,
4. any judicial seizure or search warrant and judicial decisions upholding them,
5. a warrant of arrest, a provisional order for placement, an order to be brought before a judge for examination and judicial decisions upholding them,
6. the preferment of public charges,
7. the opening of the main proceedings,
8. the setting of each date for the main hearing,
9. a summary penalty order or another decision equivalent to a judgment,
10. the provisional judicial termination of the proceedings due to the indicted accused's absence, as well as any order of the judge or public prosecutor issued after such termination of the proceedings or in proceedings in absentia to ascertain the indicted accused's whereabouts or to secure evidence,
11. the provisional judicial termination of the proceedings due to the indicted accused being unfit to stand trial and any order of the judge or public prosecutor issued after such termination of the proceedings for the purposes of reviewing the indicted accused's fitness to stand trial or
12. any judicial request to undertake an investigative act abroad.

In preventive detention proceedings and independent proceedings, the limitation period is interrupted on account of those acts done to conduct the preventive detention proceedings and independent proceedings which correspond to those in sentence 1.

(2) In the case of a written order or decision being made, the limitation period is interrupted at the time at which the order or decision is drawn up. If the document is not immediately processed after being drawn up, the time at which it is actually submitted for processing is decisive.

(3) After each interruption, the limitation period begins to run anew. However, the prosecution is barred by limitation once double the statutory limitation period has elapsed since the time indicated in section 78a and at least three years if the limitation period is shorter than three years under special laws. Section 78b remains unaffected.

(4) The interruption has effect only for the person in relation to whom the interrupting act is done.

(5) If a law which applies at the time the offence is completed is amended before a decision is given and the limitation period is thereby shortened, then acts leading to an interruption which were undertaken before the entry into force of the new law retain their effect, notwithstanding that at the time of the interruption the prosecution would have been barred by the statute of limitations under the amended law.

Title 2 Limitation on enforcement

Section 79 Limitation period

(1) A penalty or measure (section 11 (1) no. 8) imposed by final decision may no longer be enforced after the expiry of the limitation period.

(3) The limitation period is

1. 25 years in the case of imprisonment for a term of more than 10 years,
2. 20 years in the case of imprisonment for a term of more than five years but no more than 10 years,
3. 10 years in the case of imprisonment for a term of more than one year but no more than five years,
4. five years in the case of imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year and fines of more than 30 daily rates,
5. three years for fines not exceeding 30 daily rates.

1. five years in all other cases of supervision of conduct and in the case of the first order for placement in an addiction treatment facility,
2. 10 years for all other measures.

(5) If a sentence of imprisonment and a fine are imposed simultaneously or if a measure involving deprivation of liberty, confiscation or rendering unusable is ordered in addition to a penalty, then the enforcement of the penalty or the measure is not barred by the statute of limitations before the enforcement of the others. However, a simultaneously imposed preventive detention order does not prevent the running of the limitation period for the enforcement of penalties or other measures.

(6) The limitation period begins to run when the decision becomes final.

Section 79a Stay of limitation

The limitation period is stayed

1. as long as the enforcement may not, by law, commence or continue,
2. as long as the convicted person is granted
 - a) deferment or interruption of the enforcement,
 - b) suspension of the sentence by judicial decision or by act of clemency or

- c) relaxation of payment conditions in the case of a fine or confiscation,

- (3) The conditions of subsection (2) are also deemed fulfilled with regard to a termination performed by a physician with the consent of the pregnant woman if, according to medical opinion, an unlawful act under sections 176 to 178 has been committed against the pregnant woman, there are cogent reasons to support the assumption that the pregnancy was caused by the act and no more than 12 weeks have elapsed since conception.

The woman must thereby be aware that at every stage of the pregnancy the unborn child has its own right to life in relation to her as well and that therefore, according to the law, the termination of the pregnancy can only be considered in exceptional situations if carrying the child to term would impose a burden on the woman which is so serious and exceptional that it exceeds the reasonable limits of sacrifice. By providing advice and assistance, the counselling is intended to contribute to overcoming the conflict situation which exists in connection with the pregnancy and to remedying an emergency situation. Further details are regulated by the Act on Pregnancies in Conflict Situations.

(2) In accordance with the Act on Pregnancies in Conflict Situations, the counselling must be provided by a recognised counselling agency for women in conflict situations. After the counselling, the counselling agency is required to issue the pregnant woman with a certificate in accordance with the Act on Pregnancies in Conflict Situations bearing the date of the last counselling session and the name of the pregnant woman.
