Subchapter three

Types of employment contract

Article 62.

Employment contract for working as an apprentice

62.1. An employer may conclude an employment contract with the aim of providing work experience and skills to an employee as an apprentice under the guidance of an experienced colleague.

62.2. An employment contract for apprentice shall describe specifically the apprenticeship period, a person from whom the apprentice will learn, and work experience and skills he/she will learn, in addition to the terms set forth in Article 49 of this law.

62.3. The term of an employment contract for working as ordinary apprentice shall be up to 3 months. The parties may extend the employment contract once for 3 months at most upon reaching an agreement.

62.4. The term of an employment contract for working as apprentice to become a subject matter expert may be up to 2 years depending on professional specifics and professional experience and skills to be acquired. The parties may extend the employment contract once not more than a year upon reaching an agreement.

62.5. The procedure on working as an apprentice to become a subject matter expert and a list of profession shall be approved by the cabinet member in charge of the labor based on national committee's opinions.

62.6. Base salary of an apprentice shall be determined by way of agreeing his/her duties and work experience and skills he/she will learn with the apprentice and it shall not be less than 70 percent of a base salary of permanent employee who performs the same job duties.

62.7. A probationary period of employment contract shall not be concluded with an apprentice.

62.8. The other regulations and provisions in respect of the additional pay, extra pay and allowance set forth in this law shall apply to an apprentice equally.

62.9. Unless the parties agree expressly, an employer shall not be obliged to hire an apprentice for a permanent job.

62.10. It shall be prohibited to receive any fees from an apprentice for his/her apprenticeship and learning, to restrict his/her right to choose a job or profession openly, and to compel non-competition terms.

62.11. If an intern set forth in Article 63 of this law is to work as an apprentice for a subject matter expertise, the entire term of his/her employment contract shall be up to one year.

62.12. The relations associated with social insurance payment of an apprentice shall be regulated by the relevant legislation.

Article 63.;) Employment contract for internship

63.1. An employer, intern and training organization may enter into a tripartite employment contract of internship for the purpose of providing vocational education through combination of theoretical knowledge and practical experience and skills to a student of vocational education and training organization.

63.2. The parties shall agree on the training program by which

CHAPTER NINE

INTERNAL LABOR REGULATIONS, LABOR DISCIPLINE, RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE PARTIES TO

EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT

Subchapter one

Internal labor regulations and responsibilities

Article 122.

Internal labor regulations

122.1.

An employer shall approve and enforce internal labour regulations to be applied in a business entity or organization in accordance with the law in consideration of the proposals from the employee representatives.

122.2.

In the event of approval, amendment or modification of internal labour regulations, the employer shall introduce it to all employees and place it visibly.

The grounds for terminating employment contract and labor disciplinary violations shall be outlined expressly in the internal labour regulations.

122.3.

The disciplinary rules for workers and officers of some sectors and organizations that are provided the special rights under law shall be approved by a competent personnel for compliance.

Article 123.

Labor disciplinary actions

123.1.

An employee's wrongful acts and non-acts that violate the labor legislation, employment contract, internal labour regulations, and job descriptions shall be deemed as disciplinary violations.

123.2.

An employer or its authorized leader shall impose the following labor disciplinary actions on an employee who has violated labor disciplinary action on an employee who has violated labor disciplinary action:

123.2.1.

closed warning the employee individually;

123.2.2.

open warning as announcement to all employees;

123.2.3.

decrease of the employee's basic salary by up to 20 percent for a period of up to 3 months;

123.2.4.

demotion;

123.2.5.

termination of employment relations at an employer's initiative.

123.3.

An employer shall notify the employee of the labor disciplinary action prior to imposing it to receive explanations, and shall selectively use the labor disciplinary action

Paragraph 123.2 of this law, in consideration of the nature and consequences of the disciplinary violation.

A decision on imposing labor disciplinary action shall be issued in writing.

123.4. Labor disciplinary actions shall only be imposed within 6 months from the date of disciplinary violation or from the last day if the violation continues, and within 1 month from the employer's discovery thereof.

123.5. Labor disciplinary actions to the employee who will be subject to full property liability shall only be imposed within one year from the date of disciplinary violation or from the last day if the violation continues.

123.6. The term set forth in Paragraph 123.4 and 123.5 of this law shall suspend for the period where the employee has medical verifications, is on annual leave or personal leave, or the disciplinary violation is investigated by legal, audit or other competent organizations.

123.7. No multiple forms of labor disciplinary actions shall be imposed on one breach of the disciplinary rule.

123.8. Upon the expiration of a period of one year from the imposition of a labor disciplinary action, the employee shall be deemed as not having record of labor disciplinary actions.

123.9. An employer may consider the employee as not having a record of labor disciplinary actions prior to the term set forth in Paragraph 123.8 of this law which shall be notified to the employee in writing.

Subchapter two

Employer's liabilities

Article 124. Accrual of fines for failure of timely payment of salary 124.1. Where an employer fails to make payment of an employee's salary on the date set forth in Paragraph 104.1 of this law, the fine shall accrue in an amount equal to 0.3 percent of the due salary on each overdue day and shall be paid to the employee.

Article 125.

Compensation for employee's damage caused by industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational diseases 125.1.

Where an employee is exposed to or died of the industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational disease, the employer shall provide one-time reimbursement in an amount equal to the employee's average monthly salary increased as listed below to such employee, or his/her family, without taking into account whether the employee is covered by insurance of industrial accident or occupational diseases:

125.1.1.

fivefold for the loss of ability to work by up to 30% due to industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational diseases; sevenfold for the loss of ability to work by up to 30-50% due to industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational diseases; nine-fold for the loss of ability to work by up to 50-70% due to industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational diseases; and eighteenfold for the loss of ability to work by 70% or more due to industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational diseases; and 125.1.2.

36-fold for fatality due to industrial accident, acute poisoning or occupational diseases.

125.2.
